ITALIANS BOMB ADUWA IN ETHIOPIA

ATTACK FROM AIR LAUNCHES FASCIST DRIVE

RAID DIRECTED BY SON-IN-LAW OF MUSSOLINI

BULLETIN

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 3 (AP)—General Emilio De Bono, commanding the Italian colonial forces, issued a proclamation tonight to tribesmen of Eritrea that Italian troops will pass over the Mareb river through the Mellasce valley "for defense of tribesmen" against Ethiopia.

His proclamation was issued simultaneously with one at Mogadishu which declared both Eritrea and Italian Somaliland to be under full martial law.

Rome, Oct. 3 (AP)—A squadron of Italy's modern bombing planes roared over the Ethiopian town of Aduwa today, dropped its deadly cargo and the Fascist penetration of the ancient African kingdom was under way.

At the same time the army advanced from Eritrea into Ethiopia, taking up "strong positions."

After repeated denials that Aduwa, where Italy was badly beaten by Ethiopians 40 years ago, had been bombed an official source confirmed it tonight. This source said the bombardment was in retaliation for Ethiopian artillery fire upon an Italian border squadron and that only a fortress was bombed.

(Ethiopia charged Red Cross hospitals were bombed with an undetermined loss of civilian lives, including women and children.)

The "honor" of the first chance at vengeance at Aduwa, a name which rankles in the Italian mind, went to Count Gallezzo Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Benito Mussolini and commander of the attacking squadron.

Ethiopians Started Firing

As related by this official source, the Italian version of the actions follows:

Ciano was leading a squadron of seven planes reconnoitering points along the Eritrean frontier when Ethiopian riflemen began shooting at the planes. Artillery fire also burst out around the planes.

Ciano at once ordered his men toward Aduwa when his experts determined that the shell fire came from that direction. The planes dropped all their bombs on an artillery fortress in Aduwa and returned without a loss. Ethiopian losses were not determined.

Mussolini's two flying sons, Bruno and Vittorio, were on scout duty elsewhere and did not participate in the engagement.

An official spokesman, denying reports that Italy had bombed a Red Cross hospital at Aduwa, said "the reports are seeking to give a tendentious color" to Italy's advance into Ethiopia.

Such reports, he said, "are absolutely false."

Italy intends to carry out her

President Tunes In On World Series

En Route With President Roosevelt on Pacific, Oct. 3. (AP)—The Cruiser Houston dropped anchor at 1 p. m. (P. S. T.) today at the southeast tip of Cerros Island off the jutting point of lower California to give President Roosevelt an afternoon of Pacific ocean fishing.

The sun shone brightly and the sea was smooth.

His first morning at sea the president devoted to close scanning of radio reports on national and international conditions. Although presumably concerned chiefly with Europe's troubles, the president yesterday had made it clear the nation would avoid foreign entanglements, and made no comment on today's developments.

He called for a small fishing boat after lunch, during which he listened to a radio account of the world series.

BARGE AGROUND, 30 MEN SAVED

Coast Guardsmen Fight Mountainous Waves in Lake Superior

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 3. (AP)—Coast guardsmen won a gruelling battle with mountainous waves and a snow-laden gale today to rescue 30 men from the grounded barge, Transport, 20 miles west of Whitefish Point, in Lake Superior.

A 50-mile northwest wind snapped the anchor cable of the barge during the early morning hours today, as it lay half a mile off shore. Then the howling gale drove the helpless vessel onto the rocks, 100 yards from shore.

Coast guardsmen from the Whitefish Point, Deer Park, Two Hearted River and Vermilion stations hastened to the scene. Rescue efforts were begun about 8 a. m., under the command of Capt. William Kincaide, of the Whitefish Point station.

Waves Batter Hulk

Waves battered the wooden hulk, and for hours, the lifesavers were repulsed as they sought to make contact with the men trapped aboard it. Finally, a line was shot aboard shortly after noon. The last man slid to safety about 2 p. m.

Although the men were safe tonight, coast guardsmen said the barge seemed doomed. It lay on the rocks, high and dry except for the intermittent battering of the waves.

The "Transport," owned by the Roen Steamship Co., of Milwaukee, and commanded by Capt. L. E. Taylor, locked through at the Sault on September 29, in tow of the Gu La Mont. Twenty-three stevedores were recruited here, most of them Indians, augmenting the normal crew of seven.

The barge was to take on a cargo of pulpwood at the mouth of the Two Hearted River. Because of the rocky shore line, it anchored half a mile off shore, and the pulpwood was floated out to it. Half of the cargo was aboard when the storm broke today.

The "Transport" was built at Wyandotte, Mich., in 1880. It is 254 feet long and has a beam of 46 feet.

Saginaw Woman Is Freed From Prison

Lansing, Oct. 3 (AP)—Mrs. Catherine Reinecke, 50, Saginaw woman convicted of having assisted a man to commit a criminal attack on his 15-year-old daughter, went free from prison today.

Parole Commissioner Joseph C. Armstrong announced her release from the Detroit House of Correction on the recommendation of Circuit Judge Samuel D. Houghton of Bay county. The court had recommended that the sentence of 23 years to life imposed on Mrs. Reinecke be reduced to five years. The parole commissioner concurred.

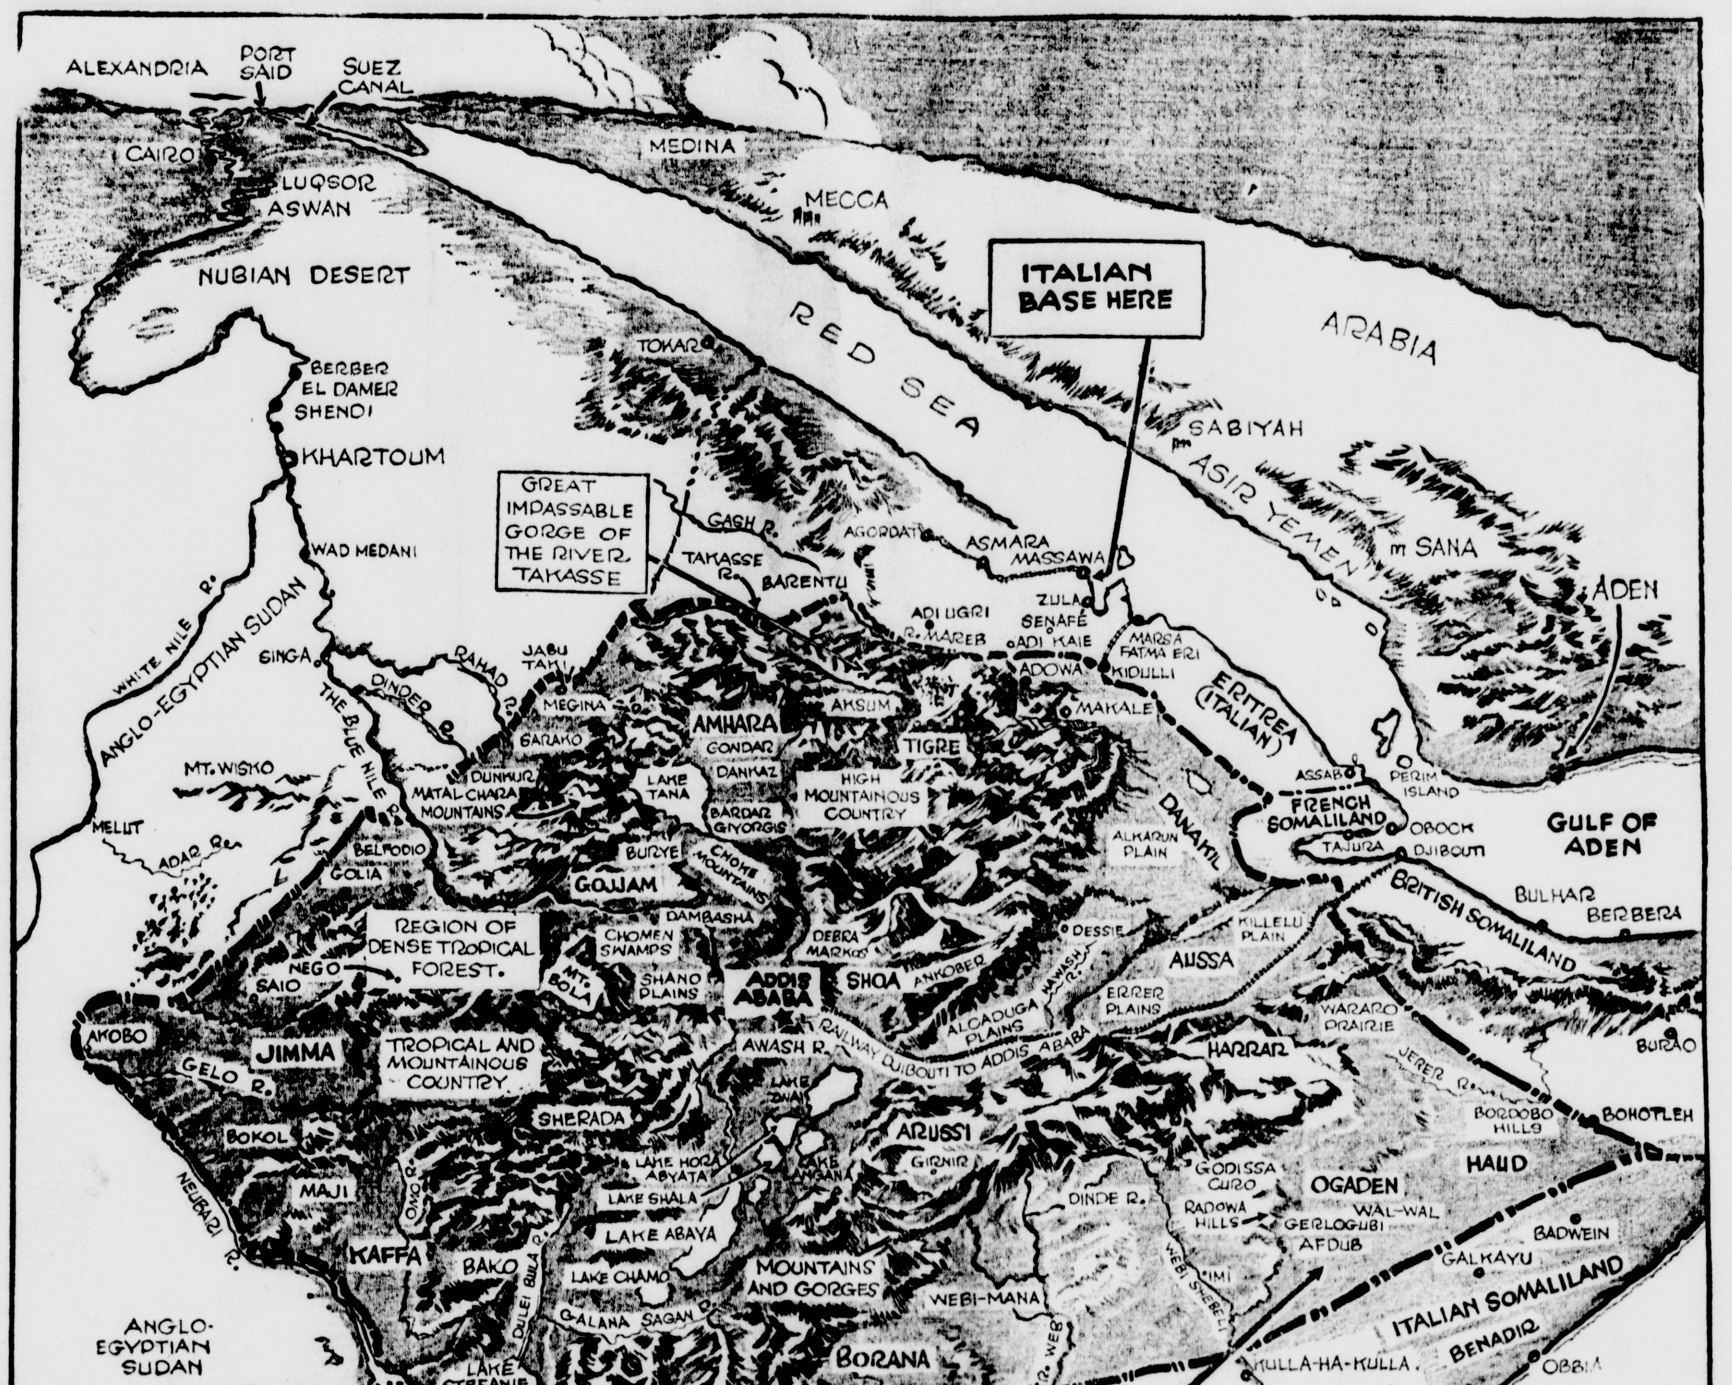
Mrs. Reinecke was convicted Feb. 3, 1928, as an accessory to Arthur L. Parker in an attack on his daughter. He also is serving 23 years to life in the branch prison at Marquette.

Thatcher Resigns From Legislature

Lansing, Oct. 3 (AP)—Rep. T. Thomas Thatcher, Democrat, Ravenna, announced his resignation as a member of the legislature today. He has accepted a position with a book publishing concern, which necessitates relinquishing his house membership.

A special election would be necessary to fill the vacancy. It was considered doubtful that the governor would call a special election unless he should decide that a special session of the legislature is necessary. Thatcher's resignation gives the Republicans a 50 to 49 majority in the house.

WHERE EYES OF WORLD WATCH GRIM DRAMA



Here, as under a magnifying glass, you see the whole of the African country on which a terrified world has glued its eyes for weeks. The dark land is Ethiopia, whose principal physical features are clearly shown. The course of the Italian invasion may be readily followed by reference to this map, which shows the obstacles as well as the actual location of towns and physical features. The oil and mineral concessions hastily granted to a mysterious foreign company lie in a not-too-precisely defined area from Lake Rudolf, lower left, northeast to a point east of Addis Ababa, and north to Eritrea. The Mediterranean-Red Sea route to east Africa and India, vital both to Italy and Britain, is shown clearly, as are the European possessions which completely surround Ethiopia.

U. S. CONSIDERS ARMS EMBARGO

Shipments to Italy and Ethiopia Might Be Prohibited

Washington, Oct. 3. (AP)—A proclamation for clamping an embargo on munitions shipments to Italy and Ethiopia was drafted tentatively at the state department today as an extraordinary step toward insuring continued American neutrality.

Only official confirmation that the undeclared war raging in Africa was an "outbreak of war" within the meaning of the new neutrality act was awaited by Secretary Hull and his aides before recommending to President Roosevelt the issuance of the arms embargo directed by that statute.

The chief executive, cruising on a warship in the Pacific, was kept fully informed of Italo-Ethiopian developments by Hull. But the secretary declined any comment on movements of Rome's modern legions beyond assuring newsmen that the government was prepared, fully and adequately, for immediate action in any emergency.

Beside the arms embargo, an official determination that "a state of war" exists also would authorize Mr. Roosevelt to issue a proclamation warning all American citizens against traveling on vessels of either belligerent nation, except on his own risk. Issuance of that proclamation would affect American travel only on Italian liners, since Ethiopia has no merchant marine.

Hull, assisted by Joseph C. Green, chief of the office of arms and munitions control was the author of the tentative embargo proclamation violation of which would be punishable by a fine of $10,000 and five years imprisonment.

Once the proclamation is issued, the neutrality act provides that it "shall be unlawful for any American vessel to carry any arms, ammunitions, or implements of war to any port of the belligerent countries named in the proclamation as being in war or to any neutral port for transhipment to, or for the use of, a belligerent country."

America Can Find No Place For War, Rush Tells Demos

Flint, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)—Bitterly assailing opposition forces as caterers to the interests of big business, ignoring the common individual, Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia tonight pointed to the Democratic administration as the trail-blazer away from war threats and towards ultimate prosperity.

Senator Holt was the principal speaker at the Young Democratic clubs of America for Michigan's third annual state convention banquet, attended by nearly 500 of the party's youngest leaders.

Must Remove Profits

"The national administration took the first step forward in passing the neutrality act," he said. "America can find no place for war—and America should let the foreign powers know that."

"Young men your age and mine go on the battle fields and get shot down in order that profits can be made by a few pepole.

"Take the profit out of war and you'll stop it almost over night.

"If American bankers and munitions makers want to sell products and make loans to foreign countries, let them do it—without sacrificing American youth to collect."

Upholding President Roosevelt's program, which has been attacked by opposition forces as having an undermining influence on the United States constitution, Senator Holt said that "the constitution is for American people and Roosevelt is interpreting it in that way."

Lauding the president for what he termed the defiance of the power trust, Senator Holt predicted that Roosevelt will beat the trust before his term in office is ended.

Frank A. Picard of Saginaw, former chairman of the state liquor control commission, was toastmaster, being introduced by State Chairman William F. Dorn, of Detroit.

Hurja Not Present

Prominent guests at the speakers' table included Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner; Patrick J. O'Brien, former attorney general; James Mogan, of Lansing, WPA executive, and Claude D. Carney, former chairman of the state labor and industry commission.

Emil Hurja, assistant postmaster general, and assistant chairman of the National Young Democratic organization, was called to Washington from Detroit Thursday morning. He was scheduled to address the Michigan delegation at the banquet.

Van Wagoner, in a brief address, indicated that his office is employing patronage powers to place as many young persons in the Democratic ranks in their service.

He urged the adoption of offensive tactics in increasing the power of the party, stating that "there is no need to defend the president. There are enough achievements to his credit that he might well take to the offensive and shout these accomplishments to the housetops."

Teacher Robbed By An Unmasked Bandit

Ionia, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)—Police officials searched today for an unmasked bandit who robbed Mrs. Evelyn Holmes, a teacher at the Jennings rural school near here, in her school room.

She said she was working after hours when a youth about 25 years old stalked into the school room and demanded all the money she had. She gave him $7 in currency but he permitted her to keep what small change was in her purse. She said he appeared to be unarmed.

7 Pilots Selected For Curtis Contest

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)—Seven pilots have been selected at Selfridge Field to participate in the Curtis trophy race, preliminary to the Mitchell trophy race to be held at the field October 19.

The men are Lieuts. C. B. Harvin, G. H. Price, D. F. Williams, R. A. Gardner, J. F. Anderson, G. R. Shoemaker and W. H. Gist. The Mitchell race is expected to be lengthened this year from 80 miles to 100 miles.

HOOVER SEEKS OFFICE AGAIN?

Political Writer Claims Ex-President Expects Another Term

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—George Creel, political commentator for Collier's magazine, asserts in the current issue that former President Herbert Hoover is confident "1936" may well witness a demand for his renomination."

Mr. Hoover believes, the article says, that he was a great chief executive, discredited by unscrupulous demagogues an that "the people of the United States have come to see this truth."

If, however, the anticipated demand for his renomination is not forthcoming, the magazine continues, "he means to insist on his right to an authoritative voice in connection with the platform and the nominee."

Senator Borah (R-Ida.) is "about the only Republican taken seriously as a candidate by the Hoover group," Creel states.

"It is indeed a new Herbert Hoover who sits out by the Golden Gate," the article pictures "calmly and inflexibly asserting his right to Republican leadership, and bolstering the assertion by a series of adroit moves. No memory of past wrongs is permitted to appear in his eyes, and none of the bitterness that used to curdle him will be allowed to stand in the way of the harmony necessary to the attainment of his consuming desire to regain the office from which he was expelled so definitely and so savagely."

Federal Receipts Are Falling Short Of Expectations

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—The government's income topped a billion dollars today, but with the first quarter of the financial year gone fell short of reaching one-fourth of the year's budgeted total.

In exact figures, receipts totalled $1,005,000,000. A week ago President Roosevelt estimated the 12-month aggregate at $4,,470,000,000. One-fourth of that amount is $1,118,000,000. A year ago this time more than a quarter of the year's total collections had been received.

Semi-official comment represented the administration as counting upon heavy income tax payments in March and June to bring the lump sum for the full fiscal year ending July 1, up to the chief executive's estimates.

Press Readers Urged to Clip Ethiopian Map

The vivid map of Ethiopia reproduced on this page will be of inestimable value to Daily Press readers in following the news from the war zone. The map which shows in bold relief all the principal points in Ethiopia reveals strikingly the country's mountainous topography, one of the Italian warriors' greatest problems in the invasion of Ethiopia.

The map also shows the route of the Djibouti to Addis Ababa railway, over which the Ethiopian capital receives its supplies. Danakil, on the east border, is the home of Ethiopia's most ferocious tribesmen. Aduwa which was bombed yesterday by Italian fliers is shown near the north central border. The map spells the name "Adowa" but Associated Press dispatches spell the name "Aduwa." Daily Press readers are urged to clip this graphic map and have it for day to day reference.

WORK FUND IS WELL DIVIDED

Nearly Entire Sum Has Been Allotted for Projects

BY THOMAS J. HAMILTON, JR.
(Copyright 1935, By The Associated Press)

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—Corrington Gill, chief of staff of the new deal work relief program, disclosed today that virtually all funds have been allotted for the drive designed to provide jobs for 3,500,000 needy and their families after November 1.

He checked over allotments totaling $4,298,500,000, leaving President Roosevelt a "kitty" of $266,500,000 for administrative expenses and a few additional projects intended to take up the job slack here and there.

State works progress directors telegraphed headquarters today that the number given work relief jobs up to October 3 was 1,126,234. This left 2,373,766 to be put on payrolls in less than a month to fulfill President Roosevelt's goal.

559,640 in CCC

The Civilian Conservation Corps accounted for 559,640 of the total. WPA was credited with 452,739 and other federal agencies the remainder. Excluding the CCC, work relief jobs had jumped 132,376 from September 19.

As Gill spoke, airplanes rushed from the Pacific coast the president's approval of additional WPA projects to furnish employment to those not provided for by other work relief agencies.

WPA, however, already was within a quarter of a billion of the $1,250,000,000 it will spend. State administrators had the power to select from three or four billion in approved projects those meeting a locality's particular needs.

Statistician and former newspaperman, Gill aided in organizing the public works administration and the federal housing administration. He now is assistant WPA administrator.

"The situation is different from the time when we put 4,000,000 to work in 30 days," Gill said, referring to the Civil Works administration.

Dollar Liners Will Avoid Italian Ports

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Dollar Steamship Lines announced tonight that its famous fleet of "president" liners will omit Italian ports of call effective immediately.

Naples, Genoa and Alexandria, Egypt, are affected in the first action thus taken by an Americanflar steamship company.

The master of the President Hayes was ordered by wireless to complete the last leg of her world voyage by preceeding directly from Port Said through the Mediterranean to Marseille and then to New York.

Henry Herbermann, vice president of the American Export Lines, said his company's ships will continue to call at Italian ports.

War risk insurance rates of American underwriters remained unchanged.

Ironwood Covered With Inch Of Snow

Ironwood, Mich., Oct. 3. (AP)—An inch of snow covered the ground here today and more was falling on the heels of a strong north wind. Flurries were reported as early as Sept. 26 in this vicinity, but this was the first time the snow had not melted as rapidly as it fell. In places, it was several inches deep.

Flurries occurred at Superior and Ashland, Wis., with the minimum temperature at Supior 30.

KING REPORTS SHELLS FIRED ON HOSPITALS

LONG AWAITED WAR IS DEFINITELY STARTED

BULLETIN

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 4 (Friday) — Unofficial reports from the front line Italian forces early today indicated large detachments of Eritrean cavalry had moved forward in the so-called neutral 30-kilometer strip which Ethiopia avowedly left open during the period of attempted conciliation.

The cavalry was said to have been followed closely by infantry, flanked by tanks and light artillery.

Information received here declared the move, described as Italy's first advance beyond the Ethiopian frontier, had virtually taken possession of the 30-kilometer expanse of wild territory.

BY JAMES A. MILLS
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Addis Ababa, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Ethiopian government announced invading Italian fliers bombed historic Aduwa today, killing women and children, signalling the start of a long-awaited war.

A general mobilization order called Ethiopia's warriors to the colors. Although it was reported in official circles the Italian minister had been given his passports, they were withheld pending the arrival of Italian consuls from the provinces.

A special tran to carry the diplomat from the country tomorrow was cancelled but officials said: "We may give the passports at any time." The emperor's imperial guard was thrown about the Italian legation to safeguard it.

Protests to League

Emperor Haile Selassi telegraphed a full report and protest to the League of Nations. He asserted Red Cross hospitals full of sick and injured were the targets of Italian bombs and appealed to world opinion to condemn such tactics.

Fighting was reported under way near Aduwa. The Reuters correspondent said Italians were retreating in that section under cover of their airplanes.

A government announcement said 100 houses at Adigrat and 15 at Aduwa, where Ethiopia crushed the Italians 40 years ago, were destroyed. Casualties were unknown, the announcement said, but it was believed the Italians occupied the entire town of Aduwa.

Earlier, Ethiopia had proclaimed a general mobilization affecting its population of 10,000,000.

The Exchange Telegraph Agency in London reported 1,700 persons had been killed and wounded in the bombardment of Aduwa.

Ethiopians said they believed that inhabitants were not warned of the attack and that it was intended to invite reprisals on Italians in this country, in an attempt to justify an Italian invasion.

The government announced a battle is in progress in Agame province, between Eritrea and Aduwa, with the Italians.

(The Reuters correspondent reported to London that Emperor Haile Selassie said in an interview: "I have just received the news that the first bombs dropped by Italian airplanes on Aduwa fell on the Red Cross hospital there, killing and wounding nurses.

("We think the embargo on the export of arms to Ethiopia should be immediately raised, owing to the fact that Italy has not only menaced us but also, according to the most recent news we have received, because Italians have crossed our frontiers at several points and bombarded the towns of Aduwa and Adigrat.")

As a warning to bombing planes, the United States legation here ran up its largest flag and three American mission hospitals unfurled huge Red Cross flags.

Anti-aircraft guns around the capital in target practice used real bullets for the first time. Natives fear a raid upon Addis Ababa, following upon the action to the north. Troops patrolled the city, while many foreigners sought refuge in the various legations.

Foreigners Stupefied

While Americans and foreigners were stupefied by the sudden outbreak of war and reported bombardment, leading Ethopians maintianed their traditional oriental calm. Addis Ababa was bathed in sunshine with the rainy season at an end.

Ras Youm, governor of East Tigre province, near Eritrea, reported the bombardment. He said in the early morning hours Italian planes flew over the city of Aduwa and dropped their deadly bombs.

Haile Selassie was understood to

FDR'S APPEAL TO LIBERALS IS DISCUSSED

LAWRENCE DEFINES MEANING OF TERM

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1935, by Escanaba Daily Press

Washington, Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt's appeal to all "Liberals" to stand united is bound to revive the controversy as to what is really meant by being "Liberal."

The Webster international dictionary speaks of a liberal person as being "open-handed" and as not being narrowly restricted "by pecuniary considerations" and as "bestowing in a large and noble way," bounteous, and generous.

Liberal With Money

The liberality of the Roosevelt administration with taxpayers' money has been unprecedented. The estimates of expenditure for the three years from 1933 to 1936 have been given as $24,000,000,000, which is just about equivalent to the sum that it took the federal government from 1789 to 1913—from the administration of President Washington to President Wilson—to spend.

The question of whether it was necessary to spend all this money will be open to considerable debate, especially since the unemployment figures do not show a material change, compared with what they were in the autumn of 1933.

The President, in his speech on the Pacific coast appealing to the "Liberals" to stand together, gave the impression that "reactionaries" was the proper term for those who opposed liberalism. Actually, a more accurate term would be "conservatives" because the Webster dictionary defines the word "conservative" as meaning one who "conserves," that is to "keep in a safe or sound state" or to "preserve from destruction."

Its Political Meaning

Mr. Roosevelt hinted, of course, that there was friction inside the ranks of the "Liberals", and he, no doubt, was using the term in its political sense, which is given in the dictionary thus:

"Not bound by authority, orthodox tenets, or established forms in political philosophy; inclined to welcome new ideas; friendly to suggestions, or experiments, of reform in the constitution or administration or government."

The political definition of "conservative" is a party which "favors the conservation of existing institutions and forms of government" and "opposed to change or innovation."

On the last point, the opponents of the New Deal are divided, too. There are many who do not want a return to old methods that have been proved harmful to the nation, but only a preservation of the methods and institutions that have built it up.

As for the "Liberals," there are many who favor new ideas and changes, but they do not wish reckless experimentation or unsound policies to be kept after their ineffectiveness has been proved.

"Nation" Attacks New Deal

Today there are "Liberal" publications like the "nation" which are attacking the New Deal on many counts, pointing out some of the unworkable laws that have been passed and the disillusionment which is coming when it is found that social security is more of a slogan than an achievement.

But the President's idea that the "Liberals" should unite is sound politically and his complaint about their disunity would be echoed by those of the opposite school of thought, too. Are the conservatives united? By no means. They are to be found in the Republican and in the Democratic parties, and recently there has been much talk about a fusion or coalition which would enable them to come together in a party that would be constructive and forward-looking and yet sound from a fiscal standpoint, a party that would not waste the taxpayers' money or continue borrowings to pay annual expenses.

Previous Statements Recalled

Were such a fusion brought about, the difference between the "Liberal" and "Conservative" viewpoint would turn largely on governmental expenses and the high cost of living. President Roosevelt, in the period of his administration when he was urging economy, uttered in a single sentence, the most penetrating comment on liberalism that has ever been pronounced. It was in his message to both houses of Congress on March 10, 1933, shortly after his inauguration. He said:

"Too often, in recent history, liberal governments have been wrecked on the rocks of loose fiscal policy."

Reciting the deficts of each preceding year, Mr. Roosevelt added: "For three long years, the federal government has been on the road to bankruptcy."

But the deficits have continued, and, during the current fiscal year, when Mr. Roosevelt once promised to have a balanced budget the indicated deficit, officially predicted, is in the neighborhood of $3,000,000,000.

This is why the term "liberalism" will no doubt produce a challenge and a tendency to apply it in the sense in which Mr. Roosevelt himself used it in his address of March 10, 1933.

If all the "Liberals" would rally to one banner and all the "savers" and economical-minded persons who have to pay the tax bill would rally to the opposite, there might be a real division, irrespective of the old-line parties and labels, and America would have a chance to choose on the basis of principles and not personalities a program looking toward fiscal soundness, or its probable antithesis, the "road of bankruptcy." But political ties are hard to break and Mr. Roosevelt is probably counting on the fact that the conservative Democrats may not break away from their party and that he will hold all the "Liberals" intact.

ATTACK FROM AIR LAUNCHES FASCIST DRIVE

program without any declaration of war because officials call it a "colonial affair." Ethiopia's general mobilization, however, was considered creating a virtual state of war, whether Emperor Haile Selassie makes a formal declaration of war or not.

Overnight, the eager Italian troops crossed the border where yesterday small Ethiopian outposts were reported.

Aduwa is one of the moral goals of Italy, for Italians say the scene of their defeat must be the scene of their victory. Mussolini, speaking of Ethiopia's "aggression" said yesterday to millions in the test mobilization, "we have been patient for 40 years. That is enough."

The Italian public received news of the advance with complete calm. Special editions with big headlines announced the long awaited action. There were no manifestations and there was no cheering.

CABIN AT FIRE TOWER OPEN

"House Warming" Held at Buck Hill, 29 Men Present

Munising, Mich., Oct. 3.—Buck Hill, location of a Michigan state fire tower was the scene of a so-called "house warming" when 29 men, Munising business men, state camp employees, fire wardens and tower men met in the new Buck Hill cabin, built during the past summer to house the warden and towerman. The new cabin is built on practically the same location as the old cabin, near the road in a cleared tract of land. The tower itself is situated a quarter of a mile away on a hill.

In 1928 the present Buck Hill fire tower was moved, piece by piece from its old location at Neven's Lake and transferred to its present location. At the foot of the fire tower hill was a group of old abandoned logging shacks. The best of these was selected and cleaned as a summer dwelling for the two state employees who, except on rainy or wet days are compelled to make their home very near to the tower. The cabin, at the time it was first occupied by the conservation officers was only what can be considered as a fairly good dwelling and during the past few years it has become so dilapidated that at the beginning of the summer it was found that a new cabin would have to be built. Near the Buck Hill location is situated the state conservation camp, Cusino No. 689 and the CCC boys from this camp constructed the new cabin during the summer months. The work was under the supervision of Superintendent Hanson of Cusino, and both the supervisor and the boys who constructed the cabin deserve high merit for their splendid work, especially when hardly one of the boys who worked on the building can be considered as skilled laborers, and with many it was the first attempt at building.

The cabin is built of logs, sixteen by twenty-four feet in the living room and ten by twenty feet in the kitchen, stained both inside and out. The chimney, which is also an outstanding piece of workmanship was entirely constructed by the inexperienced camp boys.

This is the first cabin of this kind in the Upper Peninsula to be constructed entirely by unskilled labor and due to the success of the undertaking several more will be erected both in the upper and lower peninsulas.

The evening was spent socially and several of the men made short talks. A luncheon was served.

The supervisor of District 6 in which Buck Hill fire tower is situated, Mr. Smith of Newberry, was present and he made a short talk.

The tower is situated twenty-five miles from Munising, past Melstrand and near Pine Lake.

Legion To Repaint Three Safety Signs

Munising, Mich., Oct. 3.—At the meeting of the Roderick Prato Post of the American Legion which was held at the Legion club October 1 plans were made to repaint the three Legion "Drive Carefully" signs on the outskirts of Munising. Plans were also made to cover the roof of the big pine log cabin which is located at the eight mile curve.

R. W. Nebel gave a report of the Legion state convention at Flint which he attended as a delegate from the Munising post.

Dr. G. Baxter, Joseph Hase, Dalton Gollinger, Sam Cremer, William Springer and Benjamin Zastrow were appointed by Commander T. J. Walters as a committee for the rabbit hunt and Armistice Day doings.

A rising vote of thanks was given to Judge Hoskings for his gift of the first two volumes of "Forward March."

It was also announced at this meeting that all ex-servicemen who pay their 1936 Legion dues before the first of November will be placed on the Post Honor Roll.

Atwood Refuses To Attend Meeting Of Liquor Commission

Lansing, Oct. 3 (AP)—Unexpected opposition thwarted today Governor Fitzgerald's hopes for immediate changes in the regulations governing the liquor traffic.

Secretary of State Orville E. Atwood refused to attend a meeting of the state liquor control commission called by Chairman John S. McDonald to approve or reject proposals from law enforcement officers of the state to restrict the sale of intoxicants.

The secretary of state is an exofficio member of the commission as is Governor Fitzgerald. The liquor law requires that one of them must be present in order for the commission to have a quorum.

"I want to study these proposed new regulations further," was the only reason Atwood gave for his refusal to attend today's meeting. McDonald, asked why the meeting was cancelled, said: "Ask Atwood."

Atwood said he favored giving local governments the right to set closing hours for licensees and would hesitate to vote on a proposal for a 1 a. m. closing hour to be set by the commission. Governor Fitzgerald has advocated a uniform closing hour for the state. Governor Fitzgerald is at home ill.

Steering Gears Damaged At Sea

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—Two ships, the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Atholl and the Norwegian vessel Askild, asked help in the North Atlantic today when they suffered damage to their steering gears in heavy seas.

Reports from the Duchess of Atholl indicated she was proceeding at reduced speed while tugs hurried to her aid from Liverpool, whither she was bound from Montreal.

The Canadian Pacific line stated there was no cause for anxiety.

Lloyd's earlier reported the 20,118-ton liner 830 miles east of Inistrahull, Donegal, Ireland.

The Askild, a freighter of 1930 tons gross register, has not been heard from since Lloyds received a message that the American steamer, City of Havre had sighted her yesterday morning.

The Askild was bound from Sydney, C. B. to Swansea, Wales.

SPUD CONTROL GIVEN HEARING

Wallace Asks Farmers Be Polled on New Potato Bill

BY JERRY GREENE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—Stepping into a torrid hearing, called to discuss the controverted potato control law, Secretary Wallace today answered shouts of "nullification" with a proposal for a referendum to see whether a control program is desired.

Five hundred farmers, gathered in the agricultural department auditorium, heard sharp rebukes tossed at those in charge. Roars of protest were thrown against Wallace's statement yesterday that he intended to "avoid" enforcing the potato law. Many farmers loudly demanded that the tax-control program for "spuds" be carried out.

Wallace stepped suddenly and unexpectedly into the auditorium, saying he desired to explain his bombshell remarks of yesterday. Greeted coolly by the audience as he entered, he left amid an almost complete silence.

Visualizes Bootlegging

Under attack repeatedly during the morning, Wallace told the farmers at the afternoon session that "my own personal attitude has nothing whatever to do with enforcement of an act of congress."

Budget officals, he said, now are considering a request for funds for enforcement of the law. The compulsory potato control, he said, could be made to work if the vast majority of growers wanted it, but he couldn't visualize how bootlegging could be stopped.

Wallace added that his objections had no bearing on enforcement of the law if money was available, but that they might have a bearing on his recommendations to congress for modificaton of the act.

"You can't enforce laws that go against the will of the majority," Wallace said.

The farmers gathered at the call of the AAA presumably to consider some form of substitute for the tax control laws. Farm officials have said that no funds were available yet to collect the tax of three-fourths of a cent a pound for potatoes sold in excess of the national allotment.

The session was turbulent, marked by short verbal skirmshes between Chairman Alva G. Nye of the department's legal staff, and Senator Bailey (D-N. C.) and Representatives Warren (D-N. C.) and Brewster (R-Maine).

Cheers greeted Warren, an author of the act, when he was called to testify.

"We are opposed to nullification in the department of agriculture," he roared. "We are opposed to a subordinate department of this government telling the people that it will not attempt to enforce a law of the United States.

"What kind of stuff is that—coming from a man I admire and respect?"

Warren said he had written Comptroller General McCarl on September 16 and read a reply in which McCarl said the AAA had not applied to him for funds for enforcement of the potato law. He cited portions of the letter indicatng that funds might be advanced by the treasury against tax collections.

Poll Of Farmers Shows Opposition To The New Deal

Washington, Oct. 3—The National Farm News announced today that a "nation wide poll to sound out rural and farm preelection sentiment indicates a decisive trend away from the new deal."

Without stating the number of votes cast, it said they were 65 percent against the reelection of President Roosevelt and 66 percent against the new deal.

The southern states, it said showed 80 percent against reelection and 89 percent against the new deal, while the southwest was 83 percent against reelection and 83 percent against the new deal. On the Atlantic seaboard 68 percent were against reelection and 72 percent against the new deal the middle west was 59 percent against in both cases, the Rocky Mountain states were 63 percent and 72 percent against, and the Pacific coast 65 and 66 percent against.

Delay Proposed For Arraignment Of Helen Gillis

Detroit, Oct. 3, (AP)—William G. Comb, assistant United States district attorney, said today that a government witness against Mrs. Helen Gillis, charged with harboring the late John Dillinger, had been injured in a highway accident and that delay in the arraignment of Mrs. Gillis would be sought.

Mrs. Gillis, 22-year-old widow of "Baby Face" Nelson, recently completed serving a sentence at the federal detention farm at Milan, Mich., for harboring a public enemy. She was immediately rearrested and is held at the farm pending arraignment, which originally was scheduled for a week from today.

Comb said he would ask United States Commissioner Frank Quinn to set the arraignment for Oct. 21. He would not reveal the name of the witness, who he said was injured while enroute here from San Francisco.

The government seeks to return Mrs. Gillis to San Francisco for trial, alleging she hid Dillinger there last year

TRADE BOYCOTT GETS SUPPORT

England, France Ready to Take Joint Action Against Italy

BY RICHARD G. MASSOCK
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Paris, Oct. 3 (AP)—Great Britain and France today agreed on a joint program before the League of Nations which calls for the immediate severance by league members of financial and economical relations with Italy and possible financial help to Ethiopia.

The third of the three points of the agreement, French officials announced, favors prohibition of purchase of Italian goods by league members or sale of Italian goods by league members or sale of goods to Mussolini's nation, including war munitions and their transportation.

Premier Pierre Laval after an hour's conference with Anthony Eden, British minister of League of Nations affairs, which preceded the agreement, state:

"Mr. Eden and I talked over the order of the day for the council of the league. We have considered various methods of procedure. We will continue in close collaboration in Geneva."

Under the second provision of the accord, which hints at financial help to Emperor Haile Selassie for national defense, is included also the lifting of the arms embargo against the African empire.

Eden, it was authoritatively stated, disposed of the suggestion for the closing of the Suez Canal—through which Italy's troops reach the zone of war—by reporting the British cabinet thought such an act too risky.

Britain's request for French assistance if Italy attacks the British Mediterranean fleet will receive the official affirmative of the cabinet tomorrow, officials said.

Laval promised Eden such a reply, officials continued, in return for the same guarantees from Britain in case France is attacked.

Negaunee Man Hits Wife With Poker

Negaunee, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)—After escaping from the Marquette county jail last night, where he was serving a 90-day sentence for disorderly conduct, August Koski, 43, returned to his home here, entered the bedroom of his wife, Eva, and struck the sleeping woman on the head with a heavy poker in an avowed attempt to take her life.

"I'm sorry that I didn't do a better job" Koski is said to have remarked to Officers Frank Mathews and Robert Crisp, who found him in the cellar of his home after the attempted murder and arrested him. He told the officers he intended to kill his wife and then commit suicide.

Koski hopped a freight train out of Marquette after fleeing from the jail, where he was employed as a trusty. City police returned Koski to the county jail today to serve the remaining 40 days of his sentence. A warrant has been issued by the prosecuting attorney's office charging Koski with the attempted murder and will be served when his present sentence has been completed.

Americans Now In Ethiopia Are Safe

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—American residents of Ethiopia are safely distant, for the present at least, from the scene of the Italian Ethiopian warfare.

Most of the 100 Americans listed, doctors, missionaries and members of the American legation, are in Addis Ababa, about 500 miles south.

The others are scattered in smaller communities in nearby areas.

14 ACCUSED BY FEDERAL JURY

Charged With Conspiracy to Steal Shipments of Cigarettes

Marquette, Mich., Oct. 3. (AP)—Five true bills naming 14 defendants in connection with an alleged conspiracy to steal interstate shipments of cigarettes from freight cars on four upper peninsula railroads were returned by the federal grand jury this afternoon before Judge Fred M. Raymond in U. S. district court in session in the Marquette county court house.

This makes a total of 21 true bills returned, 16 of which named 17 defendants for 14 violations of the internal revenue laws and two for violations of the federal banking act, having been returned Wednesday. The grand jurors were excused after having been in session since court opened Tuesday. True bills were found in every case brought before the jury.

Nine Plead Guilty

Sixteen counts were returned today in one indictment. Ten residents of Iron Mountain were named in the indictment and all were charged with conspiracy. They are John Basso, John Betka, Alfred Dahl, alias Al Jerum; Stanley Eagles, Walenty Forma, Ernest Krause, alias Ernie Krause; Emery LaLonde, Charles F. Richards, Niilo Salmeen, alias Nilo Solmeen, and Max Schenk.

Four other true bills returned named Charles Carlson, Mario Pietrantonio, Fred H. Parmalee and Robert Quilici, alias Bob Quilici. All were indicted on one count and in each case the charge was receiving and possession of articles stolen from interstate shipments.

Nine pleas of guilty, one of not guilty and a change of plea from not guilty were entered by defendants arraigned today. Those pleading guilty were: Charles Carlson, Walenty Forma, Emery LaLonde and Charles F. Richards, and John F. Gurky, Menominee county; Fred W. Ahola, Hancock; J. M. Turk, Hancock; Ed Herrgard, Crystal Falls, and Edward Allard, Menominee. Gurky, Herrgard and Allard were indicted for liquor law violations and Ahola and Turk for violation of the bank act.

Frank Peterson, Houghton county, liquor law violation, changed his former plea of not guilty to guilty. Max Schenk entered a plea of not guilty. All who pleaded guilty today were ordered to appear in court next Tuesday for sentence. Schenk was ordered to appear at that time for trial. Bonds of $5,000 were continued in Schenk's case.

40-MILE GALE HITS ESCANABA

First Snowfall Viewed By Local Residents Thursday Morning

Early-risers at Escanaba saw their first snowfall of the season covering the ground Thursday morning. The snow didn't stay long, but it was followed by a chilling wind which persisted all day from the northwest and brought further warning of winter to come.

Howard S. Kenny, meteorologist in charge of the weather bureau, reported his anemometer reading showed a maximum wind velocity of 37 miles an hour, and a maximum sustained velocity for five minutes of 35 miles an hour. His forecast promised diminishing winds for today, but with continued cold and probable snow.

Several trees in Escanaba were broken down in the gale Thursday, and limbs were strewn about as the wind whipped through the still green foliage.

IRON MINING MORE ACTIVE

Menominee Range Looks for Increase in Operations

Iron River—There is a feeling of optimism regarding mining operations in the district.

Although official confirmation is lacking, it was learned yesterday afternoon from well informed sources that three operators may reopen idle mines during the late fall or early winter.

Reports are current that the M. A. Hanna company is to resume operations at either the Homer or Zimmerman mines. The stockpile at the Homer is practically exhausted while some shipping has been done from the Zimmerman. The Hanna company has also shipped steadily from its two active mines, the Hiawatha and Bates.

The Hanna company is negotiating with the fee owners of the Homer, which is flooded in the two lower levels, on reopening the property which has been shut down for five years. The dewatering of the lower levels would require but a short time.

Might Operate Zimmerman

If arrangements cannot be completed for the resumption of operations at the Homer, the next best move for the Hanna concern would be to reopen the Zimmerman, also idle for several years. Then there is the Rogers, which has a good grade of ore, but is expensive to operate because of water conditions. This property is also flooded.

The Hiawatha and Bates mines have shipped from the stockpiles and pockets all summer. The M. A. Hanna company is the largest mine operator in the county, and shipped the most ore this year.

The Davidson Ore company, which operates the Davidson mines in Mineral Hills, may employ approximately 100 men during the winter. The Davidson was not a big shipper this season but still has sufficient stockpile room.

It has been the policy of the Davidson company to suspend operations during the summer and resume them in the early winter. This schedule has been followed for the last four years.

Repair Buck-Fogarty

Considerable repair work is going on at the Buck-Fogarty mine in Caspian and Gaastra. This joint property is operated by Pickands, Mather and company. A large amount of ore was shipped from the stockpile during the current season.

The James mine, owned by the American Radiator company and operated by the Mather interests, may also be reopened this year. The shipments from the stockpile have not been as extensive as those at the Hanna properties, but it is understood the plans are to bring out additional ore.

The Forbes mine operated by the North Range Mining company, of Negaunee, which has been working five days a week since it was opened early in the spring will continue on the present schedule, reports state.

It is understood that a large portion of the ore from the Forbes goes to the Ford Motor company.

Small Operators Silent

No information is available from other smaller operators in the west side as to the resumption of operations. It is doubtful, however, whether they will reopen their properties this year.

Those near to mining officials say that "things are looking up in the industry" and activity this winter will be greater than in the last five years.

Drivers' Licenses Greatly Increased

Evidence that automobile operators of the state realize the necessity that they carry operator's licenses, is given by figures in the office of the Secretary of State. These show that operators' and chauffeurs' licenses issued for the first six months of 1935 totalled 528,532, as contrasted with a total of 279,519 for the same period of 1934. The number of drivers has not increased materially; the explanation lying in the fact that at times in the past there have been as many as 200,000 unlicensed operators on the highways. Fifteen cents of the dollar charged by the state for each of the licenses is returned to the treasurer of the city, county or village in which the license is issued. These returns totalled $19,867.00 for the first half of 1934; $78,935.00 for the first half of 1935.

Transient Stands To Be Eliminated Along Trunklines

Lansing,—The state highway department and the Michigan State police joined hands today in a cooperative campaign to rid Michigan highways of transient roadside stands.

Plans for the campaign were mapped at a conference between Murry D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, and Oscar G. Olander, commissioner of the Michigan state police, along with several of their assistants. They constituted the first move to eliminate stands since Commissioner Van Wagoner announced his intention of carrying on the crusade several weeks ago.

As the first step in the campaign, E. E. Blomgren, maintenance engineer for the state highway department, was directed to make a survey of all transient stands in the state that are within the right-of-way of the state truckline system. Blomgren will start district engineers to work on the survey tomorrow and it is expected to be completed within two weeks.

When the survey is completed, Commissioner Olander and Van Wagoner will study the results to determine which roadside stands are a menace to highway safety. The areas covered by these stands will then be zoned off as hazardous. Approximately posting signs will then be erected by the state highway department.

The statutes give the two commissioners the authority to post areas on the right-of-way of the state truckline system that are considered hazardous. Once these areas are posted, owners of the transient stands will be ordered to vacate. Arrests will be made by the state police upon failure to comply with these orders.

In mapping plans for the roadside stand campaign, the commissioners ran into legal difficulties. They reached the conclusion that zoning of the right-of-ways constituted the only legal weapon available under the statutes.

Take Good Care Of Potato Crop During Harvest

Potatoes are too frequently handled by farmers as though they were a poor article of food that does not need care, when in reality they should be cared for as carefully as fruit is handled because they can be injured as easily. Potatoes are a high quality food, second only to wheat in this country as a source of food on the tables of people.

First, potatoes should be dug when they are mature, that is after the tops have died, because of frost or other causes. The digger should be padded to prevent bruising and plenty of dirt should be brought over the elevator for the same reason. The newly dug potatoes should be allowed to lay for at least one to two hours before picking begins. The skins will become hardened by exposure to the sun and air and, thus, aid in preventing injury. Then the picking should be done in crates rather than sacks because handling the tubers in sacks rubs them together, thus breaking the skins, which in turn allows rot to enter and also blackens the flesh of the tuber.

Storage should be carefully watched. Potatoes placed in storage should have good ventilation so that the excess moisture will be readily carried off and so that the tubers will cool down as rapidly as possible.

If everyone would realize that they are handling a food comparable to fruit, less objection would be made by housewives, and farmers of this section would get a preferred price for their crop.

What Is Average Cost To Produce Pound Butterfat?

The average cost of producing a pound of butterfat according to records kept on 90 farms in cooperation with the Farm Management Department of Michigan State College, was 32.2c in 1932, 33.6c in 1933, 41.1c in 1934, and 36.4c average for the three years.

This cost includes a proper charge for use of buildings, feed, labor overhead, and other smaller items. It indicates that few farmers have been making a profit on their dairy herds in the past three years, and as the average production per cow was 337 pounds of butterfat it also indicates that the cost on many farms was more than 36.4c.

Production per cow had the greatest effect in lowering the cost of producing a pound of butterfat. Cows producing up to 250 pounds fat cost the owner 56.4c per pound of fat, those producing up to 300 pounds made butterfat at a cost of 47.2c per pound, and those producing up to 350 pounds of fat did so at a cost of 39.1c per pound. These figures are for the past year while feed prices were extremely high.

What can be done to lower the cost of producing butterfat on the farm? Well, each farmer can eliminate the low producing cows through testing, and by raising all of the feed needed on his own farm.

The farmer may also be interested in possible ways to increase the price he receives for his product, because the cost of production cannot be lowered indefinitely. This takes united action on the part of all dairy farmers and might take the form of advertising their product, control of production, limiting the use of butter substitutes, or perhaps a combination of all three.

The one thing we need above all else is composure. It is amazing how one can see in all conversations the confusion of our time.
—Rev. Dr. Irving Husted Berg, New York.

NEW AIR SERVICE

AIRPLANE transportation service is now being offered on regular schedules from Sault Ste. Marie and St. Ignace to the metropolitan centers of lower Michigan, and operators of the line plan to tap the Escanaba territory next spring.

Before the depression, the upper peninsula went in for aviation on an ambitious scale, and those who pioneered in the movement contributed considerable money, time and effort to the venture. Although they did not benefit themselves these early promoters are to a large extent responsible for the establishment of a sizable system of airports and emergency landing fields in this northern part of the state.

Launching of the regular service between the two peninsulas may be the start of the realization of the dreams of those enthusiastic pioneers. Air travel is becoming more popular every year. Business and professional men, especially, are taking advantage of the saving in time that it affords them.

There has been a constant demand for faster transportation between the upper peninsula and Lansing, Detroit and other Lower Michigan points. Airplanes may meet this demand, and it is altogether possible that this form of travel will at last become established on a permanent basis.

THE SALES TAX

AGITATION against the retail sales tax is reported to be growing throughout the country coincident with announcements that with the gradual improvement in business revenues from this levy are increasing.

With the breakdown of the property tax system the three per cent sales tax come in handy in Michigan, for instance, during the last three troublous years. It is comparatively easy tax to collect and has provided state governments with a steady flow of income. In Michigan, about nineteen million has been provided annually for the maintenance of the regular functions of state government, 12 million for welfare, and the remainder has gone to the schools. A total collection for this fiscal year of 42 million has been forecast.

Opposition to the sales tax is being organized mainly among farm and labor groups, who claim that the levy bears too heavily upon their shoulders due to the fact that most of their income goes for clothing, food and other necessities, which are taxable. Agitation for exemptions on necessities an dagricultural goods has been particularly strong.

The 15-mill limitation amendment made necessary the elimination of the state property tax so that the schools and local government could be afforded the largest millage rate possible for the maintenance of their functions and services. As it is, some units of local government are hard pressed for money and have been forced to make drastic reductions.

It is unlikely that it will be possible to repeal the 15-mill amendment. If the three per cent sales tax is to be either reduced or eliminated it follows that either government services will have to be curtailed and various economies effected or else the income levy or some other form of taxation resorted to.

BETTER MANNERS

THE campaign to teach the American motorist a few manners goes on apace. The anti-noise movement, originating in New York, is now transplanted to St. Louis, where the police are preparing to crack down on over-enthusiastic horn blowers.

The St. Louis police will hand out tickets to drivers whose horns are louder than is either customary or necessary; to drivers who park in front of residences and honk lustily until their friends come to the door; to get-out-of-my-way drivers who speed along with horns constantly blaring; and to truck drivers who use loud highway horns on city streets.

It goes without saying that city life would be much pleasanter if all these nuisances could be squelched. And it is worth noticing that each offense is nothing more nor less than plain, everyday boorishness. The unmannerly motorist needs to be taught the elements of decent behavior, and the police are the logical persons to do the teaching.

KNOX HAS A PLAN

COL. KNOX has, according to Mark Sullivan, a farm program that promises the farmer as much as he is getting under AAA. This is held requisite to give any Republican candidate a chance to break into the farm states. The farmers like their bounties, and they will go along with the administration unless the opposition offers something equally as good.

Col. Knox's plan to give them something equally as good proposes reservation for them of the domestic market. All foreign farm products would be shut out by high tariffs. If the tariffs could not be made high enough other measures would be resorted to. But this alone would not be sufficient. It is proposed to subsidize, to the extent of the difference between the domestic price and the world price of the commodities exported, dumping sales on foreign markets of production in excess of domestic needs.

Critics of the Knox plan will, as Mr. Sullivan says, at once point out that foreign nations could, and would, have something to say about its application. It would be in their power to regulate agricultural imports as they might see fit. They, also, can raise unscalable tariff walls. What they would do would be predicated on their national interests. Whatever it might be it would probably be found not to fit at all well into the plan of Col. Knox.

It is perhaps superfluous to point out that while it is possible that some plan on the lines indicated by Col. Knox might work out as well for the farmer and stock raiser as AAA it would inevitably be carried out at the expense of the urban dweller, who now, unless he is possessed of comfortable means or an unusually good job, finds in the increasing cost of the necessities of life a great strain on the family income.

Statistics indicate that in two years there has been, because of the operation of the various government measures, particularly AAA, a decline in the real wages earned by a large part of the working population. Thus we find that urban discontent tends to offset the satisfaction of the farmer.

The next step in the evolution of the new national economy on which we are embarked if AAA is to be perpetuated is a redress of this unbalanced condition by wage adjustments that would enable the urban worker better to meet the conditions established by artificial measures to improve the position of the farmer.

But this, in turn, would have the effect of further increasing the price of what the farmer has to buy, and, it may be assumed, would give rise to demands by him for larger subsidies. We would have, in short, all the conditions of a vicious circle. Finally, we would have the condition that American manufacturing costs had been marked up to a point that would put large scale foreign trade out of the question.

The way things are tending we are in a fair way to put to the test the question whether a nation of 120,000,000 people can live by taking in one another's washing.

In its bearing on this question it appears that Col. Knox's plan would not be materially different from AAA.—Iron Mountain News.

"Roosevelt makes $800,000,000 available to WPA and PWA." Mama's holding her breath; the next appropriation may be for PAW.

In this era of Joe Louis and Mickey Cochrane, a super-intelligent Detroiter is one who recalls that Henry Ford has something to do with autos.

"Your jaws generate electricity when you eat." Swains who have taken their lady friends to expensive restaurants may have noticed the charge.

The government might try the AAA principle on the younger generation; pay them for not sowing wild oats.

CHAPTER I

After a long drowse, America decides to wake up. A lanky giant, carefree under the sun . . . as long and brown as the great rivers that loop across its plains—and as unexpectedly powerful, too, when its course is obstructed . . . the giant yawns, stretches, looks out over the continent-wide panorama of busy life, and begins sweeping the vermin that have been pestering it into the sea.

What is the giant like, and what are the vermin, and how is it all happening? To answer calls for a moving picture camera with a thousand lens; a camera that can look into every aspect of American life, the good and the bad, the spectacular and the humdrum, picking up a myriad unconnected pictures and displaying them in a pattern which falls together, at the last, like a jigsaw puzzle when it is completed.

Pictures of America- America being heedless and selfish, America coming to its senses and girding for a fight, America welding brain and muscle into one gigantic job of house-cleaning — the world's greatest nation, displaying its raw strength and its reckless vitality and its salty, saving humor in a triumphant struggle to show that Uncle Sam is still the homely and admirable chap he was in his youth. . . .

A good-looking girl, with maize-yellow hair and eyes that haven't looked at the world long enough to know how seamy its underside can be, looks up from her table in a night club . . . she's thrilled to death to be there and she thinks she's being just a little bit wicked, in a perfectly nice way . . . she looks up from her table and smiles at the sandy-haired chap who is beaming down at her, and she says, "How do you do, Mr. Harkins?" . . .

A clerk in an airy Washington office yanks a green drawer out of a ceiling-high filing cabinet, riffles through it with practiced fingers, and draws out a card. On the card there is a man's picture, along with ten inky smudges and half a dozen lines of type; and pinned to it is a smaller card, colored red, with the word "Wanted!" on it in big black letters. . .

A big automobile stops in a lane by the veranda of a western ranch house, and a hard-faced man sticks his head out of the front window; and a broad-shouldered youth gets up from the veranda steps and says, "Okay, Joey," and puts himself and his suitcase into the car, and it spins off to the northeast over the rolling, treeless hills where the famous bad men of the old west used to have their hide-outs . . .

A sallow, worried-looking man sits at a desk in a Chicago doctor's office. The telephone jangles; he answers, says "Yeah . . . yeah . . . I'll be right over," and takes a last, furtive look around the place before he locks up and goes out . . .

A man in a Chicago apartment writes down a phone number on the varnished woodwork over a closet door . . . An ambitious youngster fresh out of college sells a big sedan to a well-dressed stranger, and goes home congratulating himself and trying to figure how soon he'll have enough money to get married . . . A politician grins as his visitor shuts the office door behind him, and puts a fat sheaf of bonds into his safe . . . A tired police detective drinks a glass of beer and says to his friend, "Y'see, Bill, it's like this—the big lug's got an in down at city hall." . . .

And four very tough-looking gentlemen walk into a small-town bank in the middle west, swing gun muzzles menacingly, and walk out presently with a small fortune in cash and securities . . .

So what? So it's all part of the panorama, and it all makes sense if you string it together right. It makes sense because some people are foolish and some people are downright bad and some other people are both wise and good; and out of it all you can get a new slant on your America, and perhaps a new pride in it, and a new understanding of what is going on in it.

We'll start with the girl in the night club.

Jean Dunn smiled at Bobby Wallace and sat down at their table in the Golden Feather night club, saying to herself, "That man is kind of good-looking, and he's been watching me ever since I came in. I wonder who he is?"

Blissfully ignorant of this, Bobby Wallace—who was not the good-looking man she referred to—took his seat opposite her and picked up the conversation which the general stir incident to the end of the last dance had interrupted.

"Listen, Jean, I mean it," he said. "You don't want to slave in a city office all your life. Wouldn't it be more fun—I mean, even if we didn't have such an awful lot, just at first—aw, Jean, honey, say you'll marry me!"

He leaned toward her, and his honest, snub-nosed face was very earnest. Jean put the good-looking stranger out of her head and reached across to pat Bobby's hand.

"Bobby, I like you a lot," she said. "You're just a peach. But can't you see my side of it? We're both of us so young. There's so much to do, and so much to see, before we get respectable and settle down. I'm spoiled, I guess, but I don't want to be just a housewife just yet. I want—oh, Bobby, I want to play. I've only been away from home for six months. I like being on my own. I like being independent. Don't you see I want to enjoy it a while?"

Bobby sighed.

"You were in college for four years," he protested.

"Yes, and if you call that being independent, you're crazy," she retorted. "I mean being out on my own, earning my own living and all. Don't you see?"

"But we could get the neatest little apartment," said Bobby, as if that answered her objections. "Regular little parlor-bedroom-and-bath arrangement, and you wouldn't be tied down. Why, you'd be more independent than you are now. You'd be more your own boss. You wouldn't have to trot down to an old office every morning. And pretty soon we could buy one of those new sport roadsters, and go—"

"Pretty soon!" said Jean. "Bobby, dear, I don't want to hurt your feelings, but I'm just not one of these nice home bodies that can start out on a shoestring. It's not as if"—she paused, trying to pick her words tactfully—"Bobby, if you were on a regular salary it might be different. But you know yourself that selling autos is awfully, awfully irregular. One month we'd be flush and the next one we'd be living on salmon and crackers. The strain'd be too much . . . I guess I'm pretty selfish," she finished apologetically.

"No ,no," said Bobby hastily. Then he said, "You mean—if I—suppose if I had a nest egg laid away—say a couple thousand dollars—would you look at things differently?"

She smiled at him, and Bobby reflected irritably that no girl with long droopy eyelashes ought to smile at a man in that way unless she wants to be kissed.

BREAKFAST

Some like a dinner, silverware,
And lamps too low, or else that glare,
Some like a place, a dinner's such,
You sit too long, and eat too much,
A roast on top of rabbit food,
Some goodies that are not so good,
Things that not only spoil your rest
But spoil the meal that is the best.

And I mean breakfast. Not a bell,
Awakened by a coffee smell,
Or else that other call to man
Of bacon in a frying pan.
Some fruit if fruit you can afford,
Some oatmeal, if you love the Lord,
And then the wife the coffee brings,
And then, then all the other things.

Of course, all this will foolish sound
To those who'd rather bat around
The night before. But I feel sure,
Whether they're rich or whether poor,
The men who made this country great
Were early up, not up so late,
And out of bed were quick to climb
For breakfast—and at breakfast time.

Charge Dismissed In Ella Strassman Homicide Hearing

On motion of Prosecuting Attorney William J. Miller, a charge of negligent homicide against Mrs. Ella Strassman was dismissed, following a preliminary hearing before Justice H. E. Ranguette.

Attorney Miller said evidence was lacking to support the negligence charge, which was filed after the death of Mrs. Fred Edmark, fatally injured July 14 when the car in which she was riding with her husband and children collided with one driven by Mrs. Strassman.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist.

Business Picks Up For Local Firemen

As an accompanment to the nor'wester Thursday, the Escanaba fire department had an unusual run of fire calls, but none of the blazes proved to be serious.

At 9:05 a. m. a shorted radio connection at 610 South 13th street caused smoke which brought in an alarm, but the damage was confined to the radio itself.

A hot stovepipe accounted for a call from 324 South Seventh at 1:25 p. m., and a chimney fire brought the departments to 315 North 19th at 2:15 p. m. The latter fire, while causing no property damage, broke out again about 4 o'clock and the firemen were summoned for a second time.

At the first mass at 6:30 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Stuntebeck, pastor of St. Stephen's, will officiate, and the congregation will receive Holy Communion in a body.

St. Stephen's choir has prepared an appropriate and beautiful program for the Pontifical High Mass and the Benediction service will be sung by the entire congregation.

After the service from noon until 8 o'clock in the evening a chicken-spaghetti and a chicken dinner will be served in the Loretto town hall, which has been attractively decorated for the occasion. The Hill Billy Boys of Loretto will present musical entertainment during these hours. Proceeds are for the benefit of the church.

Solemn dedication of St. Stephen's church took place twenty-five years ago, the late Rt. Rev. Edmund Dunne, D. D., of Peoria Ill., and the late Rt. Rev. Frederick Eis, D. D., of Marquette, officiating, with a large number of Delta, Dickinson and Menominee county residents in attendance.

TRUCK DRIVERS ADVISED

Marquette—Declaring it is the duty of every truck driver to keep his equipment in good condition, Lieutenant L. G. Gray, of Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, chief traffic officer for the Civilian Conservation corps in the upper peninsula, spoke last night at the second session of the truck drivers' school in the city hall auditorium. The school opened a week ago as part of Marquette's safe-driving campaign and more than 200 were present last night.

Lieutenant Gray told the truck drivers that the most important thing to remember is periodic inspection of their vehciles, explaining that the "little things cause the most trouble." He said that trucks should be thoroughly inspected every thousand or fifteen hundred miles. "Safety comes with good equipment," he asserted.

Third Annual Woman Congress February 13, 14

From the Atlantic coast and the Pacific northwest, from more than half the states of the Union, club and society leaders, housewives, and business and professional women will go to Chicago next February 13 and 14 for the Third Annual Woman Congress in the Palmer House. This widespread interest has been indicated the past few days in the early response received by the Chicago Tribune, sponsor of the Congress.

Since its beginning in 1933 the Congress has won a place as one of the most important forums in the United States for the discussion of current affairs. Next February international figures in politics, industry, science, and the arts will be presented as speakers on the modern problems of the home, the nation and the world.

The approaching presidential campaign will be analyzed and interpreted by representatives of the major political parties. Emphasis will be given the international situation, particularly the question of America's neutrality in the event of another war. Authorities will lead discussions of home problems and trends in science and the arts.

The Woman Congress will be brought to order at noon on February 13. There will be afternoon and evening programs that day and morning and afternoon sessions the day following. A new feature this year will be the formal dinner Friday evening in which the Congress will reach its climax. This dinner will be sponsored by a committee of women distinguished in the central west.

All women interested in current affairs no matter what their vocation or avocation, are invited by the Tribune to attend the meetings. There will be no admission charges but because of the limited seating capacity tickets will be issued for each session. Inquiries concerning the Woman Congress will be answered in the headquarters, Room 1418, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

One bag pickling spices containing one tablespoon each whole cloves and all spice, and one fourth pound stick cinnamon.

Bring syrup to boil. Add enough crab apples for two quarts at a time, and when skins begin bursting, remove, place in hot jars, pouring syrup over apples, and seal.

Theatres

Buddy, the Wolf Dog

Buddy, the Wolf Dog, who thinks and acts with human intelligence will be presented by his master and trainer, James Christie of St. Joseph, Mich., formerly of this city, at the Delft theatre today and Saturday.

Buddy, who has won acclaim in his appearances in theatres and before clubs throughout the country, will perform his amazing tricks in a twenty-minute act at the matinee and at both shows in the evening, in connection with the regular picture program.

"Hot Tip," and "Murder in the Fleet" are showing at the Delft theatre today and Saturday.

The "Red Book" magazine story, "Leander Clicks", which caused so much comment among the reading public when it was published in 1928, affords the basis of "Hot Tip," which returns to the screen Zasu Pitts and James Gleason as a new and refreshing comedy team.

From the pen of William Slavens McNutt, who for the past two decades has provided the world with a godly amount of popular literature, "Hot Tip" is one of his best stories.

The plot develops against the colorful background of a typical race track. The protagonist is Jimmy McGill, hot dog stand owner, whose ambition is to beat the ponies.

Visitors' day on a cruiser—crowds of curious sightseers—secret work under way on a new fire control gear—then suddenly a murder!

Thus is the audience plunged almost immediately into excitement and tense mystery of "Murder in the Fleet," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's detective drama laid aboard a warship. A young lieutenant turns detective and trails a strange criminal. Suspicion rests on everyone aboard in a swift-moving story, the action of which takes place in a single night. High-pressure action mystery is solved in the final fadeout.

A pipe that is flowing completely full of water will not discharge as much as one which is only partly filled. Surface friction slows down the flow in the full pipe.

Lady Maccabees Convention Is Great Success

With the largest attendance since the organization of the district group, marking the meeting, Cloverland Association of Lady Maccabees, held a successful semi-annual conference Wednesday, with headquarters at the I. O. O. F. hall.

Attendance of delegates and visitors of Menominee, Manistique, Gladstone, Rapid River and Escanaba, reached the high mark of 130, and Manistique Hive with 58 members present took the attendance honors.

Visiting officers, who were guests of honor, were E. W. Thompson, Supreme Commander of the United States and Canada; Hubert O'Connor, State Commander; Herman O'Connor, field work; and Mrs. Mary Watt, Iron Mountain, district deputy.

The all-day session opened at 10 o'clock, with a dinner served at attractively arranged tables, decorated with flowers, at noon, and light refreshments at the close of the afternoon meeting.

Talks by the visiting officers, a beautifully performed drill by members of the Manistique drill team, attired in costumes of white satin, trimmed with red, and a group of solos by Mrs. John Kress, soprano, were included in the program aside from regular lodge business.

Manistique Hive, in addition to attendance honors, received the award for writing the greatest amount of insurance since the last meeting.

Church Events

Christian Science Churches

"Unreality" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, October 6.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Matt. 13:41, 43): "The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity. . . . Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 535): "The seed of Truth and the seed of error, of belief and of understanding—yea, the seed of Spirit and the seed of matter—are the wheat and tares which time will separate, the one to be burned, the other to be garnered into heavenly places."

"I Can't Afford Cheap Soap"

says Mrs. R. Hutchinson
4212 W. Cermak Road, Chicago, Ill.

"Like most mothers, I'm always on the look-out for bargains—but soap bargains are something I stay clear of now! I bought a supply of cheap soap last year, and practically ruined all the youngsters' new school clothes. Now I'm back to American Family's safe double-suds for good. They save me all kinds of clothes money—not to mention time and work!"

You see, American Family Soap is made with extra-rich pure suds-making material. The one brand specially created for the water in this region! Results are startling. You get double-suds, that act double-quick, in tub or machine. They're richer, purer suds, too. Float out dirt without hard rubbing. Keep colors fresher, fabrics far newer. No wonder Chicago women buy more American Family than any other brand. Try American Family Soap yourself next washday. See how it saves clothes, saves time, saves work! You'll be glad you did.

Plan A Party For Hallowe'en

Hostesses the country over welcome Hallowe-en as one of the best excuses for a party. There is almost no limit to the possibilities of entertainment in keeping with Hallawe'en traditions. They may range from fortune-telling stunts to the never-to-be-forgotten treasure hunt.

But more important than entertainment is the dinner. The following menu is suggested:

Hallowe'en Dinner Menu

Fruit Cup in Orange Baskets
Ham, Baked in Maple Syrup
Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Cauliflower
Peach Jack-o-Lantern Salad
Nut and Orange Bread Butter Pickles
Pumpkin Pie Coffee

The ham baked in maple syrup may be a center cut slice, a half, or a whole ham, depending on the number of people to be served.

Baked Whole or Half Ham

Place the ham, skin side up, on a rack in the pen roasting pan. Bake in a slow oven 300 degrees F.) until done. Allow thirty minutes per pound for baking a half ham, twenty-five minutes per pound for a whole ham. Forty-five minutes before it is done, remove it from the oven and take off rind. Score it diagonally with a sharp knife and stick whole cloves in the centers of the diamonds. Pour off drippings. Pour maple syrup over the ham and return to the oven to finish baking. Baste frequently with maple syrup.

Stuffed Eggplant

1 small eggplant
1 pound ground beef
1 small onion, cut fine
2 or 3 slices bacon
2 tablespoons bacon drippings
Salt and pepper

Parboil the eggplant until tender but not soft. Cut in half and scoop out the inside but do not break the skin. Heat the drippings, add the onion and ground beef and let them brown and partially cook. Add the bits of eggplant and refill the shells. Lay bacon strips over the top, and return to the oven to brown and finish cooking.

Eggplant and Lamb en Casserole

1 pound diced lamb shoulder
2 tablespoons lard
1 eggplant
1 onion, finely chopped
1 teaspoon parsley
2 cups tomato sauce
Salt and pepper
Paprika

Peel eggplant and chop. Place in a baking dish. Brown lamb in hot lard and arrange on top of eggplant. Add seasonings and pour tomato juice over all. Cover and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) until done, about one hour.

Squash and Sausage

Split small squash in half and remove seeds from the center. Fill with seasoned bulk sausage. Sprinkle with lemon juice over the top and bake in a slow oven (300-350 degrees F.) until both squash and sausage are done.

Stuffed Beef Heart

1 beef heart
1 cup bread crumbs
1 tablespoon onion juice
2 tablespoons melted butter
¼ cup meat stock
Salt and pepper
Cayenne pepper
2 tablespoons lard

Wash the beef heart. Stuff it with a dressing made of bread crumbs seasoned with onion salt and pepper and a bit of cayenne pepper and moistened with meat stock. Brown it in hot lard add 1 cup water and let simmer slowly until it is done about two hours.

Dill Pickles

1 1-2 oz. mixed pickle spices.
1 pound dill plant.
1 pound salt.
10 quarts water.
2-3 quart vinegar.
Grape leaves.
Cucumbers.

Use a five-gallon earthenware jar or a wooden keg. Place a layer of dill plant and spices on bottom of jar. Wash the cucumbers and pack two or three layers of them on the spices and dill. Add another layer of dill and spices, then more cucumbers, repeating until container is almost full. Fill and cover with a brine made of the salt, water and vinegar and cover with a layer of grape leaves. Place a weighted board or plate on top. New brine must be added whenever necessary to maintain the level of the liquid over the pickles.

Fermentation will be completed in two or three weeks. Remove all scum, then pack cucumbers in clean jars. Heat brine to the boiling point on gas range, cool it slightly, then pour it into the packed jars, filling them to the top. Seal and store in a cool place.

Pickled Beets

Cook small beets until tender. Cold dip and slip off skins. Make a pickling syrup of two cups sugar, two cups water, two cups vinegar, 1 lemon sliced thin, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves and one teaspoon allspice. Cover beets with syrup and simmer on gas range for 15 minutes. Seal in clean hot jars. Golden wax beans or small carrots may be pickled in the same way.

MONTGOMERY WARD

When Buying Was One Long Experiment

I'll try a pound of this," said your grandmother, "---if you are sure it's fresh."

That was some time in the second hour of her morning's search for groceries. She went from one open barrel or box to the next, along an unappetizing row of crackers, teas, cereals, dried fruits, lard and sugar ---all in bulk. She shooed the flies away, looked at, touched and tasted each article suspiciously, and finally decided to buy or not to buy, as her judgement directed. She couldn't trust a servant to do it. It was a day's work in itself.

Today, in two minutes, you give the grocer your order. You know that everything you get will be fresh, pure, attractively and cleanly packed. Why? Because you ask for advertised brands.

Advertising has taken hours of hard labor out of every housewife's day, and lines of worry off her forehead. It has made the morning's marketing a matter of certainty instead of guesswork.

Do ALL of your buying this easier way ---read the advertisements!

Another Better Housing Film To Be Screened Here

Another film on Better Housing News Flashes will be presented at the Rialto Theatre early in November, it was learned from John Vogt, theatre manager.

The film will show how many steps a housewife may save while preparing a meal in an efficient kitchen by an interesting diagramatic treatment of an inefficient versus an efficient kitchen. Interior closeups of modern equipment are also shown.

Another portion of the film shows the dramatic transformation of an old brown-stone New York residence into a modern home and office by an imaginative architect who was sold on modernization and one-way glass.

Also highly interesting are shots of excellently preserved homes almost 300 years old in Old Deerfield, Mass., one of the oldest and most historic villages in the United States.

Winding up the film is a diagramatic expedition through an average home from rof t basement, during which viewers are forced in a very unique way to examine every part of the structure.

NEW PRODUCT SELLS

Marquette—With orders on hand for a million gallons, production of "Sentinel," the Cliffs Dow Chemical company's new anti-freeze solution for automobiles, is being rushed at the Marquette plant, officers of the company said yesterday.

Manufacture of "Sentinel" was started here about two months ago and production was increased as rapidly as possible. The Cliffs Dow company arranged with the Soo-Marquette Hardware company to distribute the new product in the upper peninsula and subsequently the Standard Oil company of Indiana contracted to handle "Sentinel" at all of its service stations.

MISSING MAN BEING SOUGHT

John Martinson, 72, Brampton, Disappeared Monday

Searching parties formed by CCC workers from nearby camps will be formed this morning to search for John Martinson, 72, who has been missing since Monday from a home at Brampton where he had been staying with a daughter.

A systematic search of a brushy wooded area near the farm at Brampton will be made.

The aged man was subject to heart attacks and it is feared that he possibly was stricken while in the woods back of the farm.

He was last seen about 9:30 o'clock Monday morning near a chicken coop not far from the home.

He is described as about 6 feet tall, fairly heavy, of reddish complexion, has light hair and is slightly bald and blue eyes. When last seen he was wearing blue overalls and a tan mackinaw.

THEATRES

But for a Mexican revolution, Gilbert Roland might now be a matador basking in cries of "Bravo, el toro." Bull fighting was in the family tradition. He started in pictures as an extra. His latest appearance is with Mona Barrie in the baffling mystery, "Ladies Love Danger," now at the Rialto Theatre.

James Dunn, featured in "The Daring Young Man," now playing as the second feature, shoots the best golf of any of the screen players. At the studio's annual tournament, Dunn turned in one of the lowest scores.

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Wall Street took a grip on its war-jangled nerves today. The stock market dipped initially, held, and then staged a good rally.

A number of active issues in the share list ended with gains of 1 to 2 points or so, while commodities, eagerly bought Wednesday, were today mostly mildly reactionary.

The actuality of armed conflict abroad apparently proved less disconcerting than had its prospect. It was noted that the beginning of hostilities had not brought with it the flood of foreign selling feared.

A .6 of a point advance was registered by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks, at 47.9. The industrials and utilities did best, with rails still lagging on fears as to the financial fate of some of the weaker carriers.

Dealings in the stock exchange, quite active at the opening of trading on slightly lower prices, quickly settled down to a calm pace as stocks began to retrace a fair proportion of Wednesday's losses. Turnover was 1,499,180 shares.

Copper Price Jumps

A preference for profit-taking was evident among the commodity traders. Wheat futures at Chicago ended down ½ to 1 cent a bushel and corn was 1-8 to ¾ of a cent lower. In New York cotton was 45 to 75 cents a bale off.

Copper was an exception. The export price for the red metal rose to 8.825 cents a pound, the highest in over 2 years, as trade sources reported rumors that Italy was in the market for 60,000 tons, practically a full year's normal requirement for that country.

Followers of the copper shares took their favorites at price advances ranging from major fractions to around 1½ points, including such issues as Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge and U. S. Smelting.

The bond market gave a less positive performance than equities. Some individual issues, especially secondary rails, showed good gains, and Italy 7s retrieved early losses to end unchanged, while some Italian loans showed modest gains. U. S. government obligations, with a few exceptions, showed fair improvement.

In the foreign exchange market principal European currencies, especially the continental units, continued to back down against the dollar as nervous funds flowed toward the United States.

Some of the active shares which lifted 1 to 2 points or so included Westinghouse at 75, American Can at 140½, Chrysler at 71 3-8, Bethlehem at 36¼, Consolidated Gas at 27¼, Sears at 54¾ and New York Central at 21¼. Among gainers of a point or so were General Motors, Southern Pacific, General Electric, Montgomery Ward and Otis Steel. Losses confined to a point or less appeared in National Steel, Wolworth, American Tobacco "B" and Pennsylvania.

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—The bond market displayed a little better tone today despite the fact that some nervousness was still in evidence as fighting started on the Italo-Ethiopian front.

Italian obligations broke sharply in early dealings, but came back later. Other foreign issues were mixed. Italian government 7s were unchanged at 52½, the credit consolidated 7s were off 2 3-8 at 45 1-8 and the public utility 7s were down 1¼ at 41. Milan 6½s gained a point at 41½. Fiat 7s yielded 3 at 55 and Polish 7s were 2½ lower at 101. French 7½s were 7-8 firmer at 172. United Kingdom 5½s eased ¾ at 106 5-8.

U. S. Bonds Quiet

There were a number of outstanding domestic corporation gainers, but there were also heavy spots in all groups. The Associated Press average of the industrials was off .3 of a point, that for the rails was down .1 and the utilities composite was unchanged. Transfers totalled $13,305,000, par value, or more than $1,000,000 under yesterday's aggregate.

Murray Corp. 6½s spurted 7½ points to 172½ and others, up fractionally to 2 or more points, included Baltimore & Ohio 4½s at 56, Erie 5s at 65¾, Great Northern 5s at 96½, Interboro 6s at 76, International Telephone 4½s at 66, N. Y. Central 4½s at 66½, New Haven 4½s at 30, Southern Pacific 4½s at 70, Studebaker 6s at 57 5-8 and Warner Bros. 6s at 81.

Among losers of as much were Canadian Pacific 4½s at 96, International Paper 5s at 79, U. S. Rubber 5s at 97½, Youngstown Sheet & Tube 5s at 98, American Water Works 6s at 93, Illinois Central refunding 4s at 74, M-K-T 5s at 35 1-8, Nickel Plate 5½s at 66, New Haven collateral 6s at 45¼, N. Y. Ontario & Western refunding 4s at 46½, Pere Marquette 5s at 93½, Southern Railway consolidated 5s at 81½, Consolidated Gas 5½s at 105½ and Peoples Gas 5s at 106¼.

U. S. government securities were quiet, but gains of 3-32nds to 9-32nds of a point predominated in this department.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Oct. 3—Despite commencement of actual military attacks in Ethiopia, wheat prices today fell more than 2 cents a bushel at times.

Big selling to realize profits for recent buyers of wheat dominated the Chicago market, which had made an almost vertical rise of 10 cents in three days and was up about 18 cents within a month. Various trade leaders contended this was sufficient at present unless there should be steps taken at Geneva or elsewhere which would imply a European conflagration.

Demand for wheat continued brisk throughout the day, but most of the time the volume of new speculative buying although large was insufficient to overcome the effect of profit-taking.

Wheat closed nervous, ½ to 1 cent under yesterday's finish, December 1.06 to 1.06 1-8, corn 1-8 to 3-4 down, December 61 5-8 to 61 3-4, oats ½ off to 1-8 up, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Many Chicago wheat traders took their cue from action of the Liverpool market which appeared to be not particularly disturbed.

Rallies in wheat prices developed chiefly at about 1½ cents under yesterday's finish, and throughout the day rapid price swings characteristic of a war market formed the rule. Some observers asserted that much of the trading was based almost altogether on emotion.

Today's price setbacks followed an uprush that accompanied the liveliest buying witnessed in two years totaling 117,069,000 bushels. Something of a check on bearish sentiment was word of substantial drought relief in parts of Argentina.

Corn, oats and provisions averaged lower with wheat.

Rye selling at half the price of wheat displayed independent firmness.

COPPER PRICES HIT NEW PEAK

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Copper metal prices continued to climb in world markets today, with the export price reaching the best level since July of 1933.

Demand for this metal—one of the principal non-ferrous metals needed in modern warfare—was active both in foreign and domestic markets, with Italy reported to be inquiring for such a huge tonnage that representatives of principal producers were planning a conference at some European center next week to consider it.

Sales of copper were reported at European base ports today at 8.825 cents a pound. Yesterday's market was quoted at 8.70-8.75 cents, with some sales as high as 8.80. The price of 8.825 cents has not been exceeded since the inflationary flareup in the market in July, 1933, when it touched 8.85 cents.

Italy Wants Metal

The domestic price, protected by the 4-cent tariff, continued unchanged at the level of 9 cents established a few weeks ago, and trade estimates placed sales in the New York market for the past two days at 5,848,000 pounds, the largest in some time.

Italy is said to be inquiring for some 60,000 tons of metal, roughly her entire annual consumption, for delivery next year. Whether the purpose is to protect herself against economic sanctions, copper circles here were uninformed. At any rate, however, they agreed that Italian inquiry for such an amount of copper was unprecedented.

The sources of the red metal for Italy are limited to a few countries. Copper is practically dominated by British, Belgian, Canadian and American producers.

It was believed here that representatives of the principal exporting properties would meet either in London or Brussels, to discuss the Italian situation. The discussions were expected to include credits, means of payment, and the possibility of economic sanctions which might interfere with the transaction.

cheap little gold-digger, Bobby," she said.

"But would you?" he persisted.

"Bobby," she said, "I like you better than any man I know or ever have known. I'd marry you tomorrow, only I'm not ready to marry anybody yet. And then— please don't be hurt, Bobby—I do think that if we did get married, we ought to be better prepared financially."

"Then," pursued Bobby, "if I can lay away two thousand dollars, will you marry me?"

She smiled at him with the fondness of a friendship that extended back to childhood; and she reflected that it would take Bobby, the newly launched auto salesman, a very long time to lay away any part of two thousand dollars.

"You do it, and then come and see me," she said, laughing. "Listen, the music's starting again. Let's dance."

CHAPTER II

As Bobby pushed the chair back, they realized that two men had come up to their table. One of them was Art Lanning, the proprietor of the Golden Feather night club. He wore a dinner jacket, had dazzling sleek black hair brushed back from a pale forehead, and he seemed just a little bit too affable and suave to be entirely reliable; but then, Jean told herself, he must be all right, for hadn't her own boss introduced him to her?

Lanning's companion, she realized with a little, startled thrill, was the good-looking young man who had been so noticeably watching her from his table on the other side of the room. He was tall, and broad-shouldered, and although he wore his tuxedo as if he were used to it, he seemed to have an outdoors air about him, as if he belonged on the western plains somewhere instead of in this stuffy, overcrowded night club. Perhaps it was his hair that did it. It was sandy, and it refused to lie down in the well-trained manner of Lanning's; instead, a long forelock drooped low noved his forehead, making him look like a cowboy who had got used to the city but who, nevertheless, intended to go back to the range some day.

Lanning was smiling his stereotyped smile—the smile of the man who is everybody's friend but who watches all the angles, just the same. He put his hands on the table and leaned his big bulk over them.

"You don't mind if I introduce an old friend of mine, do you?" he said. "This is Sandy Harkins —Sandy from the hair and Harkins from the family. Sandy, this charming young lady is Miss Jean Dunn, and the lucky man with her is Bobby Wallace."

Bobby got up and stuck out his hand. Harkins extended a large, well-manicured hand and gave him a firm grip and a friendly smile. Then he turned back to Jean, to whom he had bowed while Bobby was getting out of his chair, and said, "We're not butting in, are we?"

They murmured polite denials.

"Well," said Sandy, "you know how it is. Here I am, a stranger in this town, sitting here wishing I could just have one dance before I leave, and not knowing a soul to dance with. And then my friend Art comes up, and I see him say hello to you folks as he passes your table, and so I get up my nerve and I think, 'Now maybe if Art takes me over and introduces me to those people, I could get that one dance—just one dance'."

He grinned disarmingly, as if to say, "Shucks, I'm just a friendly guy from the country, and nobody gets mad at me." Then he turned to Bobby and said, "Would you object if I asked your young lady for just one little dance?"

His voice sounded vaguely southern, or western, or something, Jean thought. It was lazy and pleasant, and it made you like him. Even Bobby seemed to be taken with him.

"Not at all!" said Bobby, grinning back at him.

Sandy Harkins turned to her again.

"Lady, I need a dance awful bad," he said. "I'll bring you back safe and sound to your boy friend as soon as the music stops."

"Then," said Jean, "we'd better start, because this number's going to be over in another minute."

She got up, slipped into his arm, and they glided away as smoothly as possible, considering the crowded state of the dance floor. He was a good dancer, she discovered, moving with the effortless grace of the born athlete; for a moment he was silent, as he maneuvered her through the crowd. Presently he look down and grinned.

"I didn't bother you, did I, earlier, staring at you?" he asked.

"Were you staring? I didn't notice."

"No? Baby, don't tell papa lies. Anyhow, I didn't mean to bother you, and I hoped you wouldn't be mad. But how could I help looking at the prettiest girl in the place?"

This was pretty obvious, thought Jean; still, she admitted, it was rather pleasant. She made some flippant reply, and he went on talking in an easy, lazy drawl. She learned that he was in this city of Dover temporarily, that he had no idea how soon he would leave, that he was in some sort of business—she wasn't quite clear just what—that kept him traveling about a great deal, and that he had no hesitation whatever in declaring that she, Jean Dunn, was tops. She grew gay and flippant in response to his mood, and before long she discovered that she was enjoying this dance very much indeed; so much so that she felt a genuine pang of regret when the music finally stopped.

"Would you just faint and fall in it if I should call you up some day?" he asked, as they started back to the table.

"No," she said slowly, "but you don't know my phone number."

"Don't worry about that, baby. What it takes to find out phone numbers grows on me. Would you hang up on me?"

She ought to tell him not to call; she knew that as well as she knew her own name. But what was the harm? A telephone call, after all — and besides, he was nice-looking, and he had an amusing way of talking. She found herself saying, "Try it and see."

They got back to the table, and Harkins and Lanning left them, after a few moments of inconsequential talk. Bobby followed them with his eyes as they walked away.

"Seems like a nice chap, doesn't he?" he asked.

Good old Bobby! thought Jean. He's probably jealous as can be, inside, but he's too nice to show it. And she had a sudden revulsion of feeling, in which she looked on Bobby with real tenderness, and told herself that she would marry him as soon as—well, as soon as—well, some day; and meanwhile, if Mr. Harkins did call her up she would just tell him that she couldn't see him . . .

"Well, look who's out seeing the sights," said a man's voice. Startled, she looked up. Bobby had sprung to his feet, and was eagerly shaking hands with a quiet-looking dark-haired man in a neat gray lounge suit; and as the man turned to her she recognized him and said, "Why, Larry Glenn—where'd you come from?"

Larry Glenn shook hands with her and helped himself to a vacant chair at an adjoining table, which he drew up between her and Bobby. He sat down, leaned his elbows on the table, and smiled first at her and then at Bobby.

"I guess I'm getting old," he said. "The children seem to be growing up."

Seeing him was almost like going back home. She had not seen him since she and Bobby had been in high school. At one time he had been the unwitting object of her first schoolgirl crush; she had been a high school freshman then, and he had been a person of glamour and romance—the college football star, back in the home town to coach the high school football team. He had been a friend of her father's, and he had often dined in their home—and had looked down on her with an amused and friendly tolerance. Then he had gone east, somewhere, and she had heard that he had become a lawyer, and later she had heard that he had some obscure but interesting kind of job with the government. And here he was again, older and soberer now, with friendly eyes and a firm chin and an older-brother air toward both of them that somehow made them both feel that if they ever got in any kind of trouble they could go at once to Larry Glenn and be got out of it.

"What're you kids doing up here in Dover, anyway?" he was asking.

"Kids!" said Bobby indignantly. "That's swell. We've been out of college exactly one year."

"Bobby's selling autos, and I'm a swelegant stenographer," said Jean.

"She's a bug on earning her own living now, but some day she's going to marry me," said Bobby, ignoring the face she made at him.

Larry Glenn looked from one to the other.

"Well," he said, "I heard a couple of years ago that things were drifting that way—"

"They're not!" said Jean. Then she checked herself and said, "Well—not just now, anyhow."

"They're drifting that way," said Bobby, "but not fast enough."

"There's lots of time," said Larry. He looked at them fondly in silence, then turned to Jean.

"I got a letter from your dad telling me you were up here," he said. "I promised I'd look you up. No"—hastily—"not to keep an eye on you. Just to say hello, and maybe take you out to dinner once in a great while, if Bobby doesn't object too much."

"I don't object at all, to you," said Bobby. "It's handsome strangers like this Harkins guy that get me worried."

"That," sighed Glenn, "seems to indicate that I'm hopelessly unromantic and aged. And who is this Harkins guy, anyway?"

BEAUTICIANS AT U. P. GATHERING

Helen Moon, Ruth Turpin and Ellen Stephens Attend Meeting

A meeting of the executive board of the upper peninsula unit of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists association held on Sunday at Marquette was well attended by beauticians from the various districts of the upper peninsula. Helen Moon, Ellen Stephens and Ruth Turpin of Manistique were the local members of the profession attending.

It was decided to hold the 1936 convention at Marquette, and the Northland Beauty Supply Co., of Marquette, was selected as organizer and manager of the trade show to be held in conjunction with the convention. The dates of the convention and trade show will be announced through the executive board as soon as the management of the Northland Beauty Supply Co. has definitely decided on the dates. At this show the services of trade artists and manufacturers' demonstrators will be available.

Special rates will be given at hotels in Marquette for delegates attending the convention.

Two programs were submitted at the Marquette meeting for consideration and endorsement in order to overcome a condition which officials of the association state exists in the beauty profession and which is becoming alarming to professional beauticians. One of these programs was presented by interests that represent beauty schools. It provides for the regulation of schools in beauty culture by classifying the school according to its standing. In presenting this program association officials stressed the destructive competition that exists among the beauty schools. This program, it was made clear, was not accepted for the fact that it still leaves the school in beauty culture in economic competition with the beauty profession.

Another program, and one that received unanimous endorsement, called for the regulation of schools of beauty under the Michigan cosmetology law. By this means, it was explained, certain destructive influences of beauty schools would be lessened and their activities would be confined chiefly to the field of education by making it unlawful to make a charge for services performed by students.

It was decided that the program endorsed by the executive committee be printed in pamphlet form and placed in the hands of each professional beautician. A petition, also endorsed, with the signatures of licensed beauticians, will be presented to the state board of cosmetology, asking that this board work in conjunction with the association and in accordance with the endorsed program.

"This program is submitted by the executive board of the upper peninsula unit of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists association for the serious consideration of the professional beautician, and the co-operation and support of the entire beauty profession is solicited with the object in view that the adoption and execution of this practice, which will respond to the best interests of public health and safety of the professional beautician and of the unexperienced students of beauty culture."

Canzoneri Defends Title Against Roth Tonight

CHAMP MEETS BRONX PUNCHER

Battle Slated for 15 Rounds at Madison Square Gardens

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—That great little fighting machine, Tony Canzoneri, one of the best little men of all times, squares off in defense of his newly-won lightweight crown tomorrow night when he faces Al Roth, a rugged puncher from New York's Bronx, in a 15-round engagement in Madison Square Garden.

It will be another episode in the chapter of teacher vs. pupil. Like Lou Ambers, whom Canzoneri beat for the title last May, Roth served a part of his apprenticeship as a sparring partner of Canzoneri and the smart money which has installed Tony an 8 to 5 favorite, is betting history will repeat itself and that the old master will give the former pupil a good boxing lesson.

One of the ring's grand war horses, the chunk Canzoneri has been fighting and winning for ten years. He won the featherweight title in 1928 by beating Benny Bass in the finals of an elimination tournament and since has held both the lightweight and junior welterweight championships.

Makes First Bid

He has twice sat at the head of the lightweight class. In 1930 he beat Al Singer, only to lose to Barney Ross three years later. Then, when Ross abdicated the throne, Tony whipped Lou Ambers, the New York state athletic commission's No. 1 challenger, in an elimination tournament.

Although he has been bouncing around near the front of the 135 pound division for two years, Roth made his first real bid for attention a few months ago by decisively defeating both Leonard Del Genio and Davey Day, the latter a stablemate of Ross' and the Chicago boxing commission's No. 1 challenger.

Five other bouts, all six rounders, will comprise the all-lightweight card: Steve Halaiko, Syracuse, meets Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Indian Hurtado, Panama, faces Julie Katz, New York; Fritz Zivic of the Pittsburgh fighting Zivics, fights the hard-punching George Salvatore of Houston, Tex.; another Zivic, Eddie, meets Lou Lombardi, Jersey City; and Lew Feldman, New York, squares off against Pete De Ruzza, bridgeport, Conn.

SERIES BATTLE SCENE SHIFTED

Cubs and Tigers Reach Chicago for Third Game

Chicago, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers gave the Chicago Cubs another "beating" tonight, arriving from the scene of their triumph today at 9:45 p. m. They immediately hopped into special busses and headed for the hotel to get a good night's rest before resuming the world series battle at Wrigley field tomorrow.

The Cub special, scheduled to arrive about the same time as the Tiger train, but at a different station, was reported almost an hour late, slowed down by heavily-loaded "specials" ahead of it.

Manager Mickey Cochrane wore a big smile as he stepped from the train and said he figured "we are in." He said Hank Greenberg's injured hand was sore, but would not keep him from playing through the series.

A crowd of about 300 was on hand when the Tigers pulled in, but offered nothing in the way of demonstration, apparently being merely curious to see what the Cubs' foemen looked like.

The Cubs reached Chicago at 10:45 losing to the Tigers by an hour and 10 minutes. A cheering crowd of more than 500 loyal fans who waited nearly two hours for their favorites, rushed the gates as the train pulled in. Before the rush could be halted, about 100 got through and formed a lane through which the Cubs marched to taxicabs.

The National league champions appeared anything but downcast over today's defeat. Most of them smiled and waved as they hustled to cabs, but none had anything to say.

Warmer Weather Is Likely At Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 3 (AP)—Th Cubs and Tigers and the 50,000 fans who will watch them resume sesume series warfare tomorrow at Wrigley field, may expect weather just a little warmer than the frigid blasts that swept Navin field in Detroit yesterday.

Temperatures in the middle forties during game time were predicted tonight by J. R. Lloyd, forecaster for the U. S. department of agriculture here. The temperature was expected to drop to freezing early tomorrow morning, but Lloyd said there would be a gradual rise during the day, with plenty of sunshine.

Now read the Classified page.

TICKET SALE REACHES HIGH

Much Enthusiasm Shown Over State-Michigan Game Tomorrow

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)—Michigan football enthusiasm reached high pitch today, as Coach Harry Kipke sent his squad through a tapering off drill in preparation for the season opener with Michigan State Saturday.

The athletic department announced today that ticket sales for the game were the highest since the opener of 1931, and that if the weather is good, 45,000 fans are expected to witness the clash of the longtime rivals.

Kipke said today he probably will start Ritchie, sophomore, at left halfback, with Captain Bill Renner, John Smithers and Cedric Sweet making up the rest of the starting backfield.

Joe Rinaldi, soph center, is in a hospital recovering from a severe cold, but is expected to be in the starting lineup. Kipke's tentative line selections are savage, end, Hanshue, tackle or guard, Kramer and Ziem on the right side of the line, with Patanelli at left end, Viergever at tackle and Bissell at guard. Kramer will be at right tackle if Hanshue starts at guard, and Ziem will be at the guard position if Hanshue starts at tackle.

ESKYMOS HAVE DAY OF REST

Nordmen Are Anxiously Awaiting Big Menominee Game

Coming out of their gruelling game with Stambaugh last Saturday with no serious injuries, Coach Carl Nordberg's Eskymos set in this week to prepare for their big game of the season against Menominee. The game will be played a week from today at the local athletic field.

Coach Barney McCann's Maroons are one of the strongest teams in the history of the school.

PRACTICE TODAY

Coach Carl Nordberg announced last night that there would be practice this afternoon at 2 o'clock for the Eskymos. He intends to stress defense against the tricky Maroon attack and will pay particular attention to the passing phase of it. All gridders are expected to be on hand for the drill.

He has welded together a big, fast set of driving backs behind a fast charging line that has swept all before it so far. Their crowning achievement this year was when they defeated Negaunee by a 52-0 score. The backs simply tore the Miner line to shreds and the line stopped the Negaunee offense cold. The Maroons were led by LaLonde, a speedy back who is being compared already to Tallent, who ran rampant several years ago for Menominee. LaLonde scampered for touchdown runs of at least 60 yards several times.

The Eskymos are using their idle week to a good advantage. Thus far, they have shown a grim determination to defeat the old age jinx that the Maroons have cast over them. The last time an Escanaba team won over Menominee was back in 1926 when a Roels' coached aggregation was victorious by a 21-0 score. Nordberg's crew, although defeated twice, once by Norway and once by Stambaugh, has shown flashes of ability and their burning desire to defeat the Maroons may furnish the necessary punch to do just that thing.

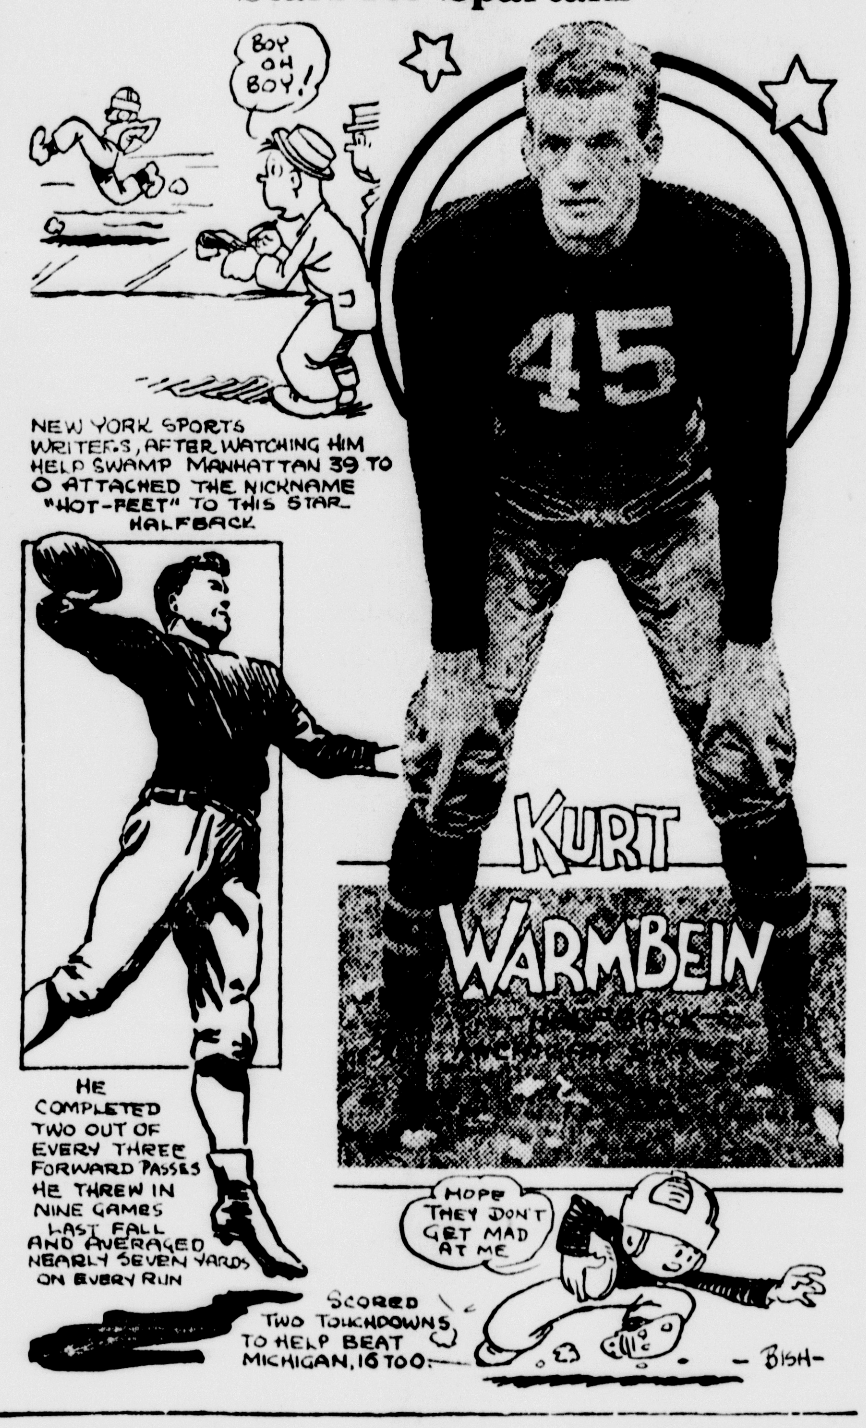
Foul and Fair in Football

The whistle blows, the referee grabs the football and trots back to the line of scrimmage. One, two, three, four, five yards he penalizes the home town team, and the fans roar their disapproval, blindly, most of them, for they don't know the infraction of rules that brought about the penalty.

Begin below is the first of a series designed to acquaint spectators with common rule violations. Follow them in The Daily Press and get a bigger kick out of watching football games.

One of the common mistakes made in tackling is the use of the illegal flying tackle. This method of bringing down a runner was banned a couple of years ago, due to injuries to both tackler and runner. In the picture above, a legal tackle is illustrated. The defensive player had made contact with the runner, feet still on the ground. Below is an illegal flying tackle, with the runner's feet entirely off the ground.

Stars for Spartans



SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

In view of the fact that the Cubs and Tigers divided the first two games of the World Series at Detroit, the owners of the two league champions are certain to regain much of the money they spent in remodeling their parks to increase the seating capacities. The players share only in the first four games, with the club owners getting an increased percentage for all games after the first four. New temporary bleacher sections at both Navin Field and Wrigley Field cost the club owners plenty of jack. The series is certain to go at least five games, and likely will run at least six games.

o

Probable pitchers for today's battle are Bill Lee for the Cubs and Eldon Auker for the Tigers. If Auker is right, he should prove particularly troublesome for the Bruins as he is a submarine pitcher and there are no Natonal League hurlers who throw from down under like Auker does. Auker's effectiveness against National League batters was clearly shown in the 1934 series when he pitched the Tigers to one of their three victories over the St. Louis Cardinals.

o

Much discussion has followed the safety which gave Stambaugh a 14 to 12 victory over the Eskymos at Stambaugh last Saturday. The controversy came about when Boucher muffed a punt deep in Escanaba territory and the ball went back across the goal lne. Boucher ran back to retrieve the ball and attempted to run it out but was forced out of bounds behind his own goal line. Unless Boucher clearly added impetus to the ball in the field of play and was responsible for sending it behind his own goal, the fact that he touched it in the field of play, later recovered it in the end zone and then was forced out of bounds there, would not constitute an automatic safety. The officials ruled, however, that Boucher's muff added impetus to the ball, and that he, therefore, was responsble for forcing the ball behind his own goal line.

Stambaugh officials, it is understood, have asked for a ruling on the play from C. E. Forsythe, state director. It is unlikely that Forsythe will be able to clarify the situation any as the judgment of the officials is the only question in the controversy. The officials say Boucher added the impetus, in whch case their ruling of safety was correct. If the officials had ruled that Boucher's muff did not add impetus to the ball and then had awarded the safety to Stambaugh regardless, they would have erred in interpretation of the rule and Forsythe could declare the safety an official "crock."

o

The Eskymos have an open date this Saturday, a week before their all-important battle with Menominee. The local boys are anticipating a bang-up battle with the Maroons who have shown their usual great scoring punch again this year. Menominee's greatest single achievement this season was their 52 to 0 triumph over Negaunee. One unofficial source, considered reliable, reported that in this game the timekeeper stopped the watch after every play, considerably lengthening the game. This observer revealed that the game which started at 2:30 was not ended until 5:30 o'clock.

PIRATES NEXT PACKER ENEMY

Green Bay Boys Pepped Up Over Chances for Title

Green Bay, Wis., October 3—Fearing that his team will meet a Pittsburgh club which is red hot Coach E. L. Lambeau, drilled the Green Bay Packers on defense for Pirate plays today, in preparation for Sunday's game at City stadium.

Sunday's contest will mark the last home appearance of the Packers this season before the Green Bay-Detroit game Nov. 10. For two Sundays after the Pittsburg game the Packers will play in Milwaukee, meeting first the Chicago Cardinals and then the Detroit Lions.

Oct. 27 Green Bay will be at Wrigley field facing the Chicago Bears, and Nov. 3 the Packers will draw an open date, resting up for what probably will be a crucial engagement with the Lions the following week.

Coach Steve Owen of New York, who scouted the Pittsburgh-Philadelphia game, regarded the Pirates as a serious threat to his own club, but the Pittsburgh team, demoralized by the temporary loss of its coach, played spiritless ball against the Giants.

One week later, however, they were back to harass the Chicago Bears for three periods of their league game, and Coach Lambeau now fears that the Pirates are on the up grade, and prepared to upset the Packers.

In a special effort to attract high school students of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan to City stadium Sunday, the Packer management has offered a reduced rate of 50 cents for each student and will set aside a special section for these young fans.

Not only athletes, but all high school and junior high students are invited to take advantage of this opportunity to see the Packer team in action, and they may receive admittance merely by asking for student tickets at the stadium ticket windows.

WRESTLING

Camden, N. J., Oct. 3 (AP)—Ed Don George, Buffalo, N. Y., defeated George Zaharias, Pueblo, Colo., tonight in a two-out-of three fall wrestling match.

George, weighing 224 to Zaharias' 231, won the first fall in 8 minutes, 30 seconds with a reverse body scissors, lost the second when Zaharias pinned him in 10 minutes, 46 seconds with a body press and then took the third and decisive fall in 6 minutes, 16 seconds with a crotch hold and body slam.

NOT POINTING FOR MICHIGAN

Bachman Blasts Thought That Game Is Big Battle of Year

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)—Amid all the talk of the "big game" between those bitter football rivals, Michigan State college and the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday, Head Coach Charley Bachman of the Spartans said today: "Big game? Hooey. Theyr'e all big to us, and we're not pointing for Michigan any more than we'll point for Kansas the following week, or other teams on the schedule. This pointing business doesn't mean much anyway. We'll play our best in all of the games. If we win it's fine, and too bad if we lose."

He added that if Michigan wins Saturday, it will know it was in a ball game. Bachman praised his team as the "hardest, fastest blockers and tacklers I have seen." He refused to predict the outcome of the game, however, terming Michigan a "mystery team that may be very good, very bad or just in between."

Bachman brought the squad outdoors again as the practice field dried from yesterday's rain. The dummies took a beating from the blockers, but he stuck to his rule against scrimmages for the varsity. The players trotted through their plays against a freshman team and Bachman seemed pleased with the precision they have built up in these slow motion practices.

The state reserves wound up preparations for their game with Olivet tomorrow afternoon. The 27 men who will make the trip scrimmage against freshmen and showed to advantage. They will stress a passing attack against Olivet.

Little Is Stymied By Daniel Cupid; Becomes Engaged

Chicago, Oct. 3 (AP)—The engagement of Lawson Little, the amateur golf star of San Francisco, to Miss Dorothy Hurd, 18, of Chicago, was announced today.

Miss Hurd's mother, Mrs. Robert Maxon, announced the engagement at a tea in the Maxon home. Tommy Armour, Charles (Chick) Evans, Johnny Goodman, and a number of well known members of the golf fraternity were present.

Little met Miss Hurd on a golf course at Colorado Springs, Colo., two years ago. She attended the Mount Vernon school, Washington.

The date for the marriage has not been set.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

WHEN the Treaty of Conciliation was signed between Italy and the Vatican, in 1929, one of the invaluable possessions of Christianity which was returned to papal control was the more than 500 miles of catacombs dug in a maze of tunnels beneath the city of Rome. These catacombs were the burial places of Christians in Roman times. In the third century they harbored Christians fleeing from pagan persecution.

By the fifth century, the catacombs were neglected, then ransacked by the Goths and Lombards, and finally forgotten. They were rediscovered in 1578.

Returned to the sovereignty of the Holy See, the catacombs are being restored. To aid financially in this effort, Spain late in 1928 issued the stamp shown here. It pictures Pope Pius XI wearing his triple crown, or tiara, and the then King Alfonso XIII of Spain.

ABE ESPINOSA LEADS GOLFERS

Chicagoan Shoots 71 in First Round of Open Tournament

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 3 (AP)—Abe Espinosa of Chicago led the field in the $5,000 Indianapolis open golf tournament today with a 71, one over par, for his first round at the Highland club.

Three strokes behind him at 74, was Massey Miller of Indianapolis, while Joe Ezar of Louisville was next with a 75. Only a dozen players were in the seventies.

Most of the big guns of golfdom which are entered in the 72 holes tournament, however, were practicing for their turns tomorrow.

A terrific wind which blew good shots off the course hampered the 103 contestants today, a majority of whom were Indiana amateurs. The temperature was so chilly that it caused the players trouble in gripping their clubs.

Revolta Starts Today

The big wind, however, brought smiles to the visiting British Ryder Cup team, for it reminded them of home. Just to prove their satisfaction, Alfred H. Padgham, runner-up in the British open this year, batted the ball around in even par 70 figures in a practice round. So did William J. Cox, while Alfred Perry, the British open champion, had a 73.

Trailing Espinosa, Miller and Ezar in the money play were Irvin Ottman, Louisville, Ky., and Eddie Williams, Chicago, both 76; Max Schultz, John Vaughan, both Indianapolis, 77.

In addition to the British stars, Henry Picard, Johnny Revolta, Craig Wood, Gene Sarazen, Horton Smith, Olin Dutra and a host of other American stars will play their first round in the tournament tomorrow.

Following completion of the first round tomorrow, the field will be reduced to 150 for the second round Saturday. Two rounds will be played Sunday to bring the event to an end.

SMITH WILL BE OUT OF LINEUP

But Red Williams Will Be in Shape for 'Stique Tilt

Definite announcement that Hal Smith, veteran back, would be unable to be in the St. Joseph lineup against Manistique Saturday caused Coach George Carr to revise his plans somewhat yesterday in preparation for the annual game with the Schoolcrafters. Smith has been suffering a stomach injury received in the Munising game and has been unable to attend practice sessions this week. He has been improving gradually but will not be in condition to play against Manistique.

While the Parochial stock took a jolt with the announcement that Smith would be out of the lineup, it bounded right back again shortly after when it was revealed that Red Williams, the team spark plug and field general, who also has been on the injured list during the week would be in shape for the Manistique game. All other members of the squad are in excellent condition, Coach Carr reported.

The Parochials had very little rough work during the week due to the small squad but nevertheless no time was lost in sharpening the St. Joseph attack. Passes of all kinds, short and long, forward and lateral, in front of and behind the line of scrimmage were given a thorough workout in compliment with the aim of Coach Carr to play a distinctly modern type of game.

Last night the St. Joseph team drilled on punts, taking considerable time to improve the team work when the team kicks, as well as when receiving punts. Several punts were hurried against Munising and Coach Carr wants no more of that.

Bud McDermott will replace Smith at halfback against Manistique. McDermott saw service in both of the last two games and showed up excellently. He is a sophomore back with great prospects.

Another boy who has caught the eye of Coach Carr is Leisner, a freshman tackle. He has been doing fine work on the reserve line and may get into action Saturday.

Tommy Bridges Pitches Tigers to 8-3 Victory

SERIES TIED UP BY DETROIT WIN; ROOT IS ROUTED

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

TOM BRIDGES

Navin Field, Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—Thomas David Bridges, the Tennessee thunderbolt with the crackling curve, came to the rescue of the Detroit Tigers today and hurled them right back into the middle of the coldest battle waged for baseball's world championship in ten years.

The six hit pitching of the slim speed-ball artist, combined with a blast of semi-freezing weather and a first-inning barrage of base-hits, halted the impetuous charge of the Chicago Cubs. The final score was 8 to 3 as the home team's "G-men" opened fire for the first time with their bats and drove the veteran Charley Root to cover with a four-run fusilade climaxed by Hank Greenberg's first homer of the series.

46,742 Frozen Fans

The Tiger triumph squared matters at one game apiece, with the warfare shifting from this frigid battleground to Chicago tomorrow for the next three games. The enthusiasm of the American league champions, along with 46,742 half-frozen cash customers was cut somewhat short by an injury to the slugging Greenberg, who hurt his left wrist sliding into the plate in the seventh inning.

Examination of Greenberg's arm by the Tiger physician, soon after the game, disclosed injured tendons but no serious damage otherwise and it was expected the big first sacker would be in the third game tomorrow, whether he he is handicapped or not.

The rival clubs left on special trains, within an hour after the game, in order to get plenty of rest before resuming the series tomorrow on the home grounds of the National league champions at Wrigley field. The pitching selections for the third game are Elden Auker, submarine-ball right hander of the Tigers, and big Bill Lee, freshman right-hander of the Cubs.

The Cubs, somewhat chastened by their beating today, still ruled slight favorites as they hustled back to their home grounds. They have been unbeatable at home for a month and they are confident of gaining the advantage again with Lee in the box tomorrow and the great Lon Warneke, shutout hero of yesterday's game, slated to come back for the fourth game on Saturday.

The Cubs acted like most of the onlookers felt this afternoon—half frozen. They were helpless for fully two-thirds of the game against the dynamic speed and curves of Bridges. The slim Tennessee sharpshooter held the Chicagoans hitless for three innings, yielded only three well-spaced hits in the first six frames and eased up after his mates piled up an overwhelming margin by battering three Cub hurlers.

Greenberg Homers

The Tigers had a seven-run lead before the Cubs pushed over their first marker, with the aid of two miscues by Greenberg in the fifth. With his chance for a shutout spoiled, Bridges coasted along for the rest of the game and was in difficulty only once, in the seventh, as Billy Herman drove in the last two Cub runs with a looping hit to left.

The Tigers came out of their batting slump with a bombardment that must have echoed all over Detroit, if not the entire country. Before they took the field for the second game, Manager Cochrane exhorted them in effect, as follows: "It's too cold for any fancy business today, men, so you might as well step right up and start smacking everything you can get your bats on."

Following instructions to the letter ,the Tigers thumped Root for four successive hits and as many runs. Jo-Jo White looped a hit to left as a starter. Cochrane lashed a double down the right-field line, scoring White. Charley Gehringer, after being robbed of a home run by the wind that carried his towering drive over the right-field wall in foul territory, smashed a single to center, scoring Mickey. Greenberg took a toe hold and battered a homer high into the bleacher crowd back of left field.

The only man "out" at this juncture was Root, a veteran of other and celebrated world series bombardments who saw his hopes of a come-back shattered once more. Root has now started four world series games and failed to finish a single one. He was a victim of the famous ten-run outburst by the Athletics in the fourth game of the 1929 series. He was on the mound in Chicago in 1932 when Babe Ruth—who caught a foul ball in the press box today—called his shot and cracked a home run into the center field bleachers.

Henshaw Does Well

Little Roy Henshaw, former University of Chicago boy and a southpaw, halted the Tiger onslaught, pitching hitless ball for three innings before going to pieces in the fourth. With two out in this frame, Henshaw nicked Owen with a curve ball. The Cub pitcher then failed a duck a hard smash from the bat of his pitching rival, Bridges. The ball hit him on the leg, caromed off for a base-hit and seemingly left Henshaw a bit wobbly. He lost control quickly, passing White to fill the bases and turning loose a wild pitch, with Cochrane up, to let Owen across the plate. A pass to Cochrane filled the bases again and Henshaw was knocked out of the box by Gehringer's line single to center, which scored Bridges and White.

Right-handed Fabian Kowalik, formerly of the Buffalo Internations, stopped the Tigers. He yielded only three hits for the rest of the game but his wildness contributed to the last Detroit run. This was tallied in the seventh. Cochrane walked, was forced by Gehringer, who advanced when Greenberg was hit by a pitched ball and raced home on Pete Fox's single to right.

Greenberg Injured

It was at this point that Greenberg figured in the episode that caused his injury. Tearing around the bases, big Hank was planning to halt at third base but when Fox's hit caromed away from the Cub infielders in short right, he was sent on home. The relay to Hartnett and Greenberg's headlong slide reached the plate at about the same time. Hank was blocked off, however, and tagged for the third out. He got up rubbing his left wrist, which had been bruised a bit the day before in a play at first, but finished out the game.

The injury didn't seem serious until Hank reached the clubhouse. The arm felt numb, he said. The club physician, Dr. William E. Keane discovered the tendons were hurt but, barring complications, expressed the opinion Greenberg's arm would respond to treatment over-night and that he would be in the lineup tomorrow.

Gehringer, driving in three runs and scoring two others, was the big gun in the Tiger attack. The powerhouse section of the Detroit batting order, after going hitless the day before, generated the decisive batting energy. It was a typical come-back by a team that has been erratic most of the year, yet apparently is well supplied with recuperative stuff when needed.

The Cubs looked almost as helpless against the pitching of Bridges as the Tigers did against Warneke the day before demonstrating once more that the man in the box holds the whiphand in world series warfare. Gabby Hartnett rapped out the first Chicago base-hit in the fourth. Phil Cavarretta tallied the first run but it was a gift. Greenberg first fumbled Phil's grounder then tossed wildly to Bridges. Hack's infield out advanced Cavarretta who raced home on Bill Jurges' single to right.

Frank Demaree doubled to the screen, in the sixth, but the blow came after the Tigers had wiped out Lindstrom and Hartnett on a double play and was wasted. In the seventh, with one out, Jurges walked and Kowalik scratched a single down the third base line. Both advanced on Galan's grounder to Gehringer and both scored on Herman's single.

Bridges was touched by Hack for a single to start the ninth but retired the next three batters rapidly, including Chuck Klein, one-time National league batting champion, pinch-hitting for Kowalik. Klein popped a short fly to Goslin.

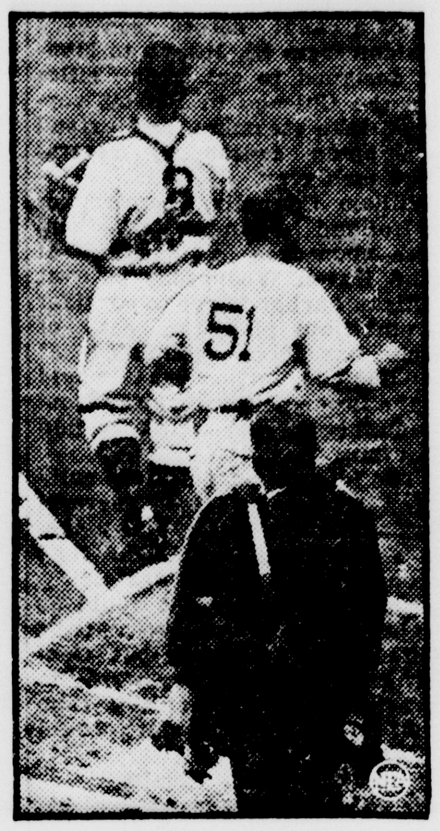
Despite brief spells of wildness, Bridges never had anything serious to worry about as the Cubs kept popping up his fast ball or hitting his curves into the ground. The fielders looked like they were having a track meet, galloping around the park to keep up with fly balls swept off their course by the high wind.

The game was played in the coldest series weather since the 1925 series between Washington and Pittsburgh. It was close to freezing this morning and it was in the forties, with a penetrating wind blowing, throughout the game. The crowd, only 600 short of yesterday's turnout, was bundled in heavy coats, furs and blankets. The infield was sprinkled just before the game, to keep the dust down, but it dried out quickly. Gusts of wind swirled dust off the diamond into the lower stands off first base throughout the game, but the crowd took everything philosophically, cheering wildly throughout and apparently taking the attitude that the come-back of the home team was worth the discomforts involved.

HERE'S RUN THAT WON, AS GALAN MOVED AROUND BASES

The run that won the first game of the world series—Cubs, 3; Detroit, 0—started on its way here. A slashing liner boomed from the bat of Augie Galan, as Catcher Mickey Cochrane and Umpire George Moriarty stood tensely behind the plate. The ball flashed past Shortstop Rogell as he made a wild lunge—

And the Cub left fielder and leadoff man, away with the crack of the bat, tore past big Hank Greenberg, Tiger first sacker, and Umpire Ernie Quigley, rounded first and started his sprint for second, as the ball rolled on into the outfield. Beating the relay from the garden, he pulled up safely at the keystone—



A slow roller oozed down the third base line from Herman's bat. Galan sprinted to third and when Rowe's throw was bad he crossed the plate.

"Watch Us Go", Says Mickey After Battle; Auker Pitches Today

Detroit, Oct. 3. (AP)—"We've started hitting—now watch us go."

It was Mickey Cochrane, smiling for the first time in two days, speaking. The Tiger manager, a broad grin on his face, sat in the wire cage which serves as his office in the clubhouse today and was glad to meet everybody. It was a different Mickey Cochrane than the individual who led his defeated Tigers off the field yesterday. He was cheered and confident that his players would triumph over the Cubs in the third game of the series in Chicago tomorrow.

"I'll start Auker against them," Cochrane said, "and he ought to beat 'em. Bridges pitched a swell ball game today. He had plenty of stuff and good control and never was in danger. I was glad to see those base hits in the first inning. It's about time we started getting 'em. Isn't it?'

Hank Hurts Wrist

Big Hank Greenberg, Tiger first baseman, injured his left wrist sliding into home plate while attempting to score in the seventh inning and was immediately rushed downtown for X-ray examination. Dr. William E. Keane, Tiger physician, said the tendons on the back of the wrist had been hurt, but he was not worried over the injury, expressing the opinion Greenberg would be ready to play tomorrow.

Greenberg was relieved. He had complained that his wrist was numb when he came off the playing field, but after the examination said he would be ready for action tomorrow.

There was no pop-eyed celebration in the Tiger dressing room as there was in the Cub clubhouse yesterday. The Tigers took their victory as something they expected and had coming to them. Little Tommy Bridges, who held the Cubs to six hits, naturally quiet and bashful, took his victory modestly.

"I'm glad I won," he said, "I felt confident I would when I started."

The Cubs, with Manager Charlie Grimm leading them, trooped into their clubhouse with the same old fighting spirit and not at all downhearted. Once inside the door Grimm let out a blood-curdling yell and said:

"That's the way to get beat. Get the hell kicked out of you and have it over with."

"Still Gentlemuns"

"Tough luck Charlie," he yelled to the veteran Charlie Root, who was knocked out of the box in the first inning.

"You guys looked better losing than those guys did winning," Grimm yelled to his players. "You are still big gentlemuns. I didn't want to send Larry French in to relieve Root after the Tigers scored four runs in the first because I might save him for a tougher spot or even use him as a starting pitcher before the series is over. We're just as happy over here as they are over there."

Grimm praised the pitching performance of Bridges whose curves, speed and change of pace fooled the Cubs completely.

"Bridges looked swell in there" Grimm said. "He had a lot of stuff on the ball and took good care of us."

Uniforms were strewn all over the place as the players shed them and rushed to the showers. They were hurrying to catch their train which left for Chicago at 5 p. m. Grimm warned his men to get a good night's rest in Chicago instead of making the trip in sleepers.

Stanley Hack, Cub third baseman, probably expressed the sentiment of all his teammates when he blurted out: "We're not downhearted. It's all even now and we'll lick 'em tomorrow."

Grimm plans to start big Bill Lee, right hander and leading National league pitcher this year, against the Tigers tomorrow. Lee won 20 games this year, losing only six.

Notes About World Series

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Assocated Press Sports Writer)

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Tigers picked just the kind of a day to cool off the hottest team in baseball. It was so cold that the crowd shouted for Admiral Byrd and his penguins.

—o—

When the Tigers are down and out they call on Tommy to "Bridge" the chasm of despair to the high road o. hope. Tommy pitched the Tigers into the lead last year by beating the great Dizzy Dean after Elden Auker had tied it up. And he put them back into a tie today by curving icicles around the Big Bad Bears' necks.

—o—

"Grandpappy" Root didn't go to the showers. He went to a charcoal stove. Poor Charlie! His record is one of the finest in baseball, yet he has yet to finish a World Series game. He's started in four of them now and has been a "good time Charlie" every time—to opposition batters.

—o—

The Tigers really made a great, great "grandpappy" out of Charlie in that big first inning. They belted him for four hits and four runs and he left the game with a "perfect" record for the Detroit fans. Charlie didn't get a single man out.

—o—

Jo-Jo White started with a single and Mickey Cochrane started the rout by doubling him home.

—o—

Bridges was such a technical, painstaking workman that he averaged four pitches to a man. He sometimes ran the count to 3 and 2, and sometmes running up two strikes without a ball and sometimes pitching three balls and then three strikes.

—o—

Babe Ruth, perched in the press box behind the plate, made the star catch of the game. The Bambino stood up and caught a foul off Freddie Lindstrom's bat in the fourth inning. The crowd gave him a big hand and he liked it.

—o—

If Al Schacht doesn't get pneumonia, it'll be a marvel of medical science. The baseball comedian engaged in a shadow boxing skit before game time with Maxie Rosenbloom without a shirt on. As he lay on the cold ground (he knocked himself out) his second doused him with a pail of water.

—o—

The scalpers took it on the chin for the second straight time today. The cold weather kept thousands away and the scalpers were begging customers to buy ducats for a dollar a throw. One settled on a cup of coffee and a hot dog.

—o—

The goose egg is still following Goose Goslin. He hasn't had a hit yet. But he got on base today.

—o—

As Tommy Bridges was warming up, he was almost doused with water. Because of the low wind that blew dirt off the infield into the spectators' eyes, the infield was sprinkled before game time. A hose connection broke and the water flooded the mound that Tommy was dishing 'em up from.

—o—

Ths series will go down as the "delayed buck." Yesterday's game was delayed 18 minutes. It was stalled for eight before it got going today. And did Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis boil!

—o—

And so it's back to Wrigley Field for the show. It'll be Elden Auker, the submarine man who became a great pitcher after breaking his arm, against "General" Bill Lee tomorrow. They call Bill the General because he struts lke a major general on dress parade.

Little Giants Are Idle Tomorrow; Get Much Needed Rest

Rock, Mich., Oct. 3.—The Rock high school fotball team has an off day Saturday and is getting a much needed rest period after the last couple of games. No game was scheduled for this Saturday as Coach Weingartner is attending the institute at Ironwood this week-end and the boys can recuperate from their injuries. Maki, Chenail and several others of the first string are suffering from leg ailments. Maki took a terrific pounding in the Marquette game and being one of the smallest men on the squad has to take a great deal of punishment.

Only light scrimmage and signal practices have been scheduled for this week. Last night's practice was washed out by the rain and the boys were excused from the work out. Coach Weingartner was particularly pleased with the way Pilon at center wrecked the Marquette "B" offense Saturday. The blocking of the whole team was much better than in preceding games and the boys displayed a more aggressive offense.

There are two or three tentative games left on the schedule, but the Rock mentor is desirous of scheduling more games to round out the season.

HAWKS SENSE BATTLE ROYAL

Hard Fought Scrap Anticipated With Flying Dutchmen

When the Flying Dutchmen of Little Chute, Wisconsin, one of the Badger state's most colorful football teams, come to Escanaba Sunday afternoon they will meet a fighting, determined Escanaba Blackhawks aggregation at the Escanaba Athletic Field. The Hawks are anxious to add the Flying Dutchmen to their victims, realizing such a victory would be a mark of distinction and a much desired "scalp" to add to their belt.

The Hawks' greatest problem in preparing for the assault of the Flying Dutchmen is to determine what form of offense the Little Chute team will use in the game here Sunday. The Hawks have learned only of the fine record made by the Little Chute team in Wisconsn competition. In order to be certain that their defense will cover any mode of attack used by the Flying Dutchmen, the Hawks plan to be prepared for anything and everything.

Advance ticket sale for the game was started yesterday and an intensive campaign will be conducted. The Hawks plainly have been dissatisfied with the support accorded the local team in view of the fine performance registered in their first two starts. The Escanaba aggregation has not yet been scored on, and their goal line has not been really seriously threatened, although in Stambaugh, at least, they met one of the finest offensive teams in the north.

Bert Sharkey, the Hawks' sparkplug quarterback and team captain, who was injured in the Stambaugh game Sunday, will probably be out of the local lineup this week. Although X-ray examination revealed that Sharkey's injury was not serious, he is suffering a bad bruise. Bodette who has played brilliantly at halfback in the first two games, will take over the signal calling job against Little Chute.

The Hawks' passing attack proved particularly powerful last Sunday and it is certain that the Escanaba team will take to the air considerably against the Flying Dutchmen.

Bosch BEER
ALWAYS PROPERLY AGED

HOW TO PICK A WINNER . . . CHOOSE BOSCH BEER

Don't take our word for it. Ask your neighbor—preferably an old-timer—about Bosch Beer. He'll probably tell you Bosch has been a favorite in Northern Michigan since 1374. He may explain that Bosch is brewed by the famous Krausen process which eliminates the need for carbonating beer.

You want to pick a "winner" when you buy beer. Of course! It's easy—just choose Bosch Beer. Ask any old-timer—he'll tell you. Bosch has been—and still is—Northern Michigan's finest beer.

SCHOOLS GIVEN DEED TO FIELD

Escanaba Council Grants Board of Education Special Request

A request from the Escanaba board of education, asking that the city give the board a deed to the high school athletic field property, was granted by the city council at ther regular meeting last night.

The field was previously used as an athletic field under a 99-year lease. Members of the board attending the council meeting pointed out that some $30,000 worth of improvements had been made since the land was leased from the city back in 1923, and that more were contemplated, including a $9,000 field house. With such as investment in improvements, the board members pointed out that they preferred to hold a deed to the property rather than a lease, and the council authorized the issuance of such deed.

Final hearing on proposed paving projects requested by property owners on North 13th, South 11th, South 16th and Ogden avenue, was scheduled for last night. No objections were received, and the projects will take the usual course under the WPA program.

Those in arrears on their utility accounts may get the usual discount on their current bills by paying five percent of the old bill under a resolution passed by the council last night.

Approval was given to a petition asking for a sanitary sewer extension on North 20th street. The council ordered plans prepared for including the extension under the WPA program.

Another petition asked for an extension of the alley in Campbell's addition, in the block bounded by 14th street and 11th avenue south.

An icehouse building permit granted to Iver Johnson was renewed for one year by the council.

No action was taken on applications for liquor licenses, of which the council has two on file. The council was previously instructed not to exceed the quota fixed by liquor control regulations, and as this quota is now filled the council will take no acton until advised by the liquor commission of their stand in the matter.

Brampton Man Lost Since Monday Being Sought By Sheriff

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of John Martenson, 72, is asked to communicate with Sheriff William Miron as soon as possible.

Martenson left his home near Brampton about 9:30 o'clock on September 30 and has not been seen since. Relatives notified Sheriff Miron only yesterday of his disappearance and asked for aid in finding him. A searching party worked futilely yesterday for several hours and a much larger one, under the direction of Sheriff Miron, greatly augmented by CCC boys from nearby camps, is expected to renew the hunt this morning.

Martenson is a tall, straight man and when he left home was wearing woodsman's clothes.

Canal Across Michigan Is Under Consideration

Holland, Mich., Oct. 3. (AP)—Michigan would become an island under a proposal made by sponsors of a canal across southern Michigan from St. Joseph to Monroe, designed to cut 750 miles from the Chicago to Detroit voyage of lake steamers, and extend the shipping season by several weeks each year.

William Connelly, secretary of the Holland Chamber of Commerce, sponsored a meeting at Grand Haven Wednesday of west Michigan harbor towns to consider the ambitious plan, the cost of which has been estimated at $100,000,000. The canal would cut the lower peninsula away from the mainland, and would be 200 miles long.

"The idea is not new,' Connelly said. "It was discussed several years ago, and a survey was made, but we feel that now is the time to consider the matter again."

Funds for the project would be sought from the government's public works program, but Connelly said the plans now were "in too nebulous a state at this time to tell exactly how the work would be financed."

Canal Avoids Straits

He said the proposed projects called for a canal starting at Grand Haven, and would cut across the state north of Highway 112, touching Three Rivers, Dowagiac, Coldwater, Tecumseh, Adrian, Cement City and other communities and connecting with Lake Erie at Monroe Harbor.

Connelly said he believed the canal would cut down the long water haul around the state and would avoid passage through the Straits of Mackinac, thereby extending the navigation season by use of a southern route which would not freeze so early or thaw so late in the spring.

Representatives of Grand Haven, Manistee, Ludington, St. Joseph, North Manitou Island, South Haven, Pentwater and Holland attended the meeting Wednesday. They decided to discuss the plan in more detail at a second meeting to be called later.

Connelly predicted at the meeting that Chicago and Milwaukee would lend support to such a project and that Michigan ports would favor it because of increased tonnage in their harbors.

Further discussing the project, Connelly said "The route of the proposed ship canal would of course have to be determined by survey. Monroe and St. Joseph seem like logical terminals. The valley of the St. Joseph river probably would be followed for about ten miles, then over a route due each by way of Dowagiac, Three Rivers, Colon, Coldwater, Hillsdale, Adrian to Monroe. The topography and difference of elevation of the two lakes would obviously eliminate consideration of a lake level canal and would require the construction of locks."

Connelly said that "funds for construction of this huge project would necessarily come from the federal government. No doubt some state participation would be required. Study of financial set-up of the proposed Gulf-to-Atlantic canal across Florida would be made. The whole project would be set up as a work relief measure and necessary legislation introduced at the next session of congress."

Harold Lusardi, Of Rock, Hurt In Auto Collision On Sunday

Rock, Mich., Oct. 3—Word was received here yesterday by Mrs. Frank Trombly that her son, Harold Lusardi, was slightly injured in an automobile accident Sunday morning about 45 miles north of Milwaukee. Lusardi left Gladstone early Sunday morning enroute to Milwaukee with Dr. R. Diamond of Gladstone and another man in Dr. Diamon's car. It was reported that Dr. Diamond suffered a fracture of the collar bone and the unidentified man had several ribs fractured. Lusardi sustained several cuts and numerous bruises.

According to Lusardi, they were approaching the top of a long hill when they were met head-on by another car. Dr. Diamond's car, following the impact, rolled down a 20-foot embankment and landed on its top. The occupants were able to get out of the car through a window. The car was badly wrecked.

NEGROES FIGHT WITH ITALIANS

Rioting Breaks Out in Harlem, Brooklyn; Police Called

New York, Oct. 3. (AP)—Fighting, which threatened to attain riot proportions, broke out in Harlem and Brooklyn late today between negroes and Italian sympathizers at odds over the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

So tense was the situation, that hard-pressed police officials went into conference at headquarters late in the day with the outcome pointing to establishment of heavy police reserves in each precinct of the mixed neighborhoods.

The most serious trouble threatened in Brooklyn late in the day when several hundred white and negro youths swarmed from a junior high school at Saratoga avenue and Dean street to "settle" the Italian-Ethiopian feud with knives, clubs and fists.

Gang fighting among the pupils soon resulted in the gathering of a crowd of nearly 1,000, evenly divided in sympathies. School authorities put in a call for police.

Six radio cars, the emergency police squad, a corps of detectives and Deputy Chief Inspector Edward A. Bracken, in command of Brooklyn police, answered the call. The crowd was dispersed, but a guard was posted to watch for further trouble in the neighborhood, populated about equally between negroes and Italians.

School authorities, after the fighting, picked up four ice picks, a billiard cue, a baseball bat and assorted clubs.

Thousands Without Their Auto Titles

There are at the present time, and at nearly all times for that matter, some 4,000 car owners in Michigan who do not know where the titles to their cars are. Officials of the Department of State have the titles, but don't know where their owners are. The owners could not sell, trade in, or even give away their cars, without these titles, at least not in Michigan. The "lost title" file gets an annual cleaning out when new weight tax license plates must be bought. Then come letters by the hundred, complaining that titles have never been received. The explanation for most "lost" titles lies in owners moving to new addresses which can't be traced, or giving the wrong addresses in the beginning.
